CONTRADICTORY REPORTS

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Oct. 20.

The mystery of LEE's movement last week is unrevealed; a part of his army was at Culpepper this morning, being vigorously embarked on trains of cars for the Southwest.

REPORT—An officer just in from the front brings the intelligence that LEE's whole infantry force is across the Rappahannock. Some of his cavalry are still on this side, and part on the other side.

Our reserve cavalry under Gen. MEADE, yesterday advanced as far as Warrenton Junction, meeting but few rebel cavalry, who retired as we advanced.

The rebels have up and utterly destroyed the railroad between Manassas and the Rappahannock. Every bridge and culvert was ruined, and in some places the embankments were thrown down.

The rails and bridge-ties were burnt and the iron twisted up with heat so as to be worthless.

Construction trains left Manassas this morning to repair the damage. So thorough has been the destruction, that with all the force our engineers can at present command, not more than one mile a day can be repaired.

Rebel prisoners taken by our cavalry say that LEE's design was by his attack last week to force MEADE back to the defences of Washington, then to retreat and make the railroad impassable toward Richmond for three or four weeks, and to hurry with a superior force down the Virginia and East Tennessee Railroad, smash BURNSIDE if he could, and then to hurry back to MEADE's front.

"There is probably no truth in the rumor that Gen. MEADE is in hot pursuit of the rebels, or that they have retreated beyond the Rapidan.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

The Spirit of the Men and the Skill of the Generals—Recalls of the Recent Retrograde Movement.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HEADQUARTERS ON THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Saturday Evening, Oct. 17, 1863.

The recent movements of the two great armies now confronting each other in Virginia are not without interest, particularly by reason of the science and skill displayed by the Commanding Generals, and the indomitable energy exemplified by the men commanding both armies. Within a period of five days these two formidable bodies have traversed a distance of between seventy and eighty miles,—in an air line,—skirmishing continually, and maneuvering daily to be prepared for defiance or attack, at the same time transporting the immense quantity of munitions of war required, with rations and forage for so large a force of men and animals. How this could be done by one of the wonders of the present era, and a feat never before accomplished so successfully, it is believed, in this or any other country. While the task was a serious burden to the enemy, it was much more so for our army, because it was a long distance from its base of supplies, was possessed of a superfluous quantity of material, which had to be transported as the army fell back with only twelve hours notice, and closely watched, and constantly harassed by an at will or impossible enemy who let no opportunity pass unimproved, night or day, to attempt a surprise or bring a general engagement; and when it is considered too, that we were passing through, practically, an enemy's country, where all the advantages were on the side of the foe—the mills that gave direction and controlled the vast machinery of which this army is made up must be something superior to that possessed by a majority of military commanders.

The man possessing this capacity was during all the time calm and quiet as though attending to any of the ordinary affairs of life—his temper unruffled, giving his orders in firm but mild manner, commanding the respect and prompt cooperation of all under him. To this power of self-control perhaps may be attributed the perfect success of the movement to fancy as to any other one cause; for by it there was a sympathetic feeling aroused in the heart of every subordinate, and the whole army seemed to be actuated by a controlling center to do all that was possible to insure success. To an outside observer it was a sublime spectacle, and a general summary of the details of the movement may not be uninteresting to the readers of the TIMES. On Friday, the 9th last, the two armies occupied opposite banks of the Rapidan, near the extending on the left in the vicinity of Falmouth, and on the right to Robertson's and Hazel Rivers, beyond Thoroughfare Mountain, the centre being in front of Culpepper. On that day it would appear, by subsequent events, both armies were under orders to advance—and portions of both did advance—Gen. BUFORD's cavalry taking the lead on our side. At this time the Signal Officer on Thoroughfare Mountain telegraphed that two columns of the enemy—infantry and cavalry—were moving on the Orange and Gordonsville roads toward Madison Court-house, threatening our right flank, then being under the watchful eye of Gen. KILPATRICK's cavalry division and a small force of infantry, under Gen. PLEASONTON, but there was no collision between the enemy's advance and our picket-line, leaving morning the 10th, when they crossed Robertson's River at Raccoon Ford and Gordonsville, leaving in the cavalry pickets near the Gen Hundred and Twenty-sixth New-York infantry, and by 10 o'clock A. M. both infantry and cavalry had been forced back to James City. Half an hour later the Signal Officers were compelled to evacuate Thoroughfare Mountain owing to the close proximity of the enemy. For a while Col. ALGER, of the Fifth Michigan cavalry, checked their advance at James City, while Major HAMMON, with the Fifth New-York cavalry, checked them on the Gaingersville road. The infantry division retired slowly, while Gen. DAVIES' brigade of cavalry held Crooked Run—the First Virginia cavalry holding the Sperryville road all night. Gen. CUSTER's brigade was not attacked on Crooked Run. All night this brigade (except the First Virginia,) was relieved by Col. GAMBLE's brigade, of Gen. GAMBLE's division, and Gen. CUSTER moved to Sussex City and the enemy were held until late at night.

On Sunday morning, the 11th, the whole of Kilpatrick's cavalry division, under orders, moved off—Custer's brigade to Colvers Tavern, DAVIES to Gaines' Mill to cover the retiring of the Fifth corps pickets. Major HAMMON, with the Fifth New-York, at an early hour was sent up the Sperryville road, and being hardly pressed, fell back fighting. No sooner had the infantry all crossed Mountain Creek, than the enemy pressed the cavalry back to Culpepper, where the Fifth New-York again held their advance until the rest of the cavalry had crossed and our batteries had been placed in position on a hill, which was the day before occupied by Gen. PLEASONTON. Here an artillery duel took place. Gen. Custer's division was from this point sent on the right flank, and moved up to guard the fords on the Rappahannock above the railroad bridge. Gen. BUFORD, at the same time, was hotly engaged with the enemy at Stevensburgh, several miles southeast of Culpepper. At about this time Capt. GAGNE, who had, with his squadron of the Second New-York cavalry, been sent on a reconnaissance up the Cedar Mountain road, returned to find himself cut off at Culpepper. In cutting their way through, Capt. GAGNE was killed and several men were lost, but a majority of the squadron succeeded in rejoining their command, after some hard fighting. Gen. PLEASONTON it now being 1 o'clock, ordered Gen. KILPATRICK to retire slowly, which he did—Gen. Custer's brigade on the right and Gen. DAVIES' on the left, closely pressed by the now exultant enemy. And they had reason to be so, for from the high ground occupied they could see what Gen. KILPATRICK could not, that Gen. BUFORD had been forced back from Stevensburgh to beyond Brandy Station, thus bringing a force of the enemy directly obstructing the line of Gen. KILPATRICK's retreat. The division retired in column, taking successive position to retard the progress of the enemy, and when the rebel force was discovered in front and flank at Brandy Station, in an instant every sabre was drawn and cheer after cheer filled the air, and, to the music of Custer's brigade band, the column moved forward to meet the enemy's column under Stuart, ready to charge. The cool determination of the men caused the enemy to give way to front, when they formed on the flank and opened a heavy fire of artillery. Several charges were here made upon both the rear and flanking columns with success, having been led by the Generals themselves. Taking up a new position, the enemy, having been reinforced by infantry, charged our lines several times, but were handsomely repulsed. After a severe contest here, in which our own and the enemy's battle-flags several times came in close proximity, Gen. PLEASONTON massed the artillery of both divisions, and, placing them in position, invited a further contest, which having been most respectfully declined and our own infantry, with trains and baggage, having safely crossed to the left bank of the Rappahannock, the cavalry fell back to the river.

As I have said before, from Culpepper Gen. GAGNE's division moved in a northerly direction on Sunday, to the different fords on the Rappahannock above the railroad bridge. The First New-Jersey cavalry had a severe conflict at Sulphur Springs on Monday, losing in all some forty men in killed and wounded, among the former Major LEGAS, who was shot through the head and killed instantly. The whole division (excepting the First Maine and First Maryland) was forced back Monday night to Fayetteville. The First Maine cavalry, under Col. SMITH, and 180 men of the First Maryland cavalry, Major ROBERTS, were sent off early Monday on a reconnoissance, with instructions to proceed as far as possible on the road to Sperryville. Sperryville was reached without meeting any fighting force, though several squads of the rebel cavalry were seen. Here Lieut. HERBERT and twelve men were sent to communicate the result of the reconnoissance thus far made to Gen. GAGNE. This party has not been heard of since, and was undoubtedly captured. At Sperryville Col. SMITH ascertained that EWELL's corps was expected every hour, and that the whole of Lee's army was advancing northward. The object of the expedition having been accomplished, toward evening the command started to return by the route it came, intending to encamp for the night two miles east of Amissville. Major RUSSELL, with his detachment of First Maryland cavalry, was sent on in advance, after passing the latter place, to communicate with Gen. GAGNE. He had gone but a short distance before he was attacked by the enemy, and his men fell back in some disorder upon the main command. Col. SMITH, supposing the enemy had only a small force, at once disposed his command for action, but upon reconnoitering he ascertained to his discomfiture that he had the whole of A. P. HILL's corps in defiant before he could advance any further on that road; wisely considering that the Commanding General would not expect him to attempt, much less to accomplish, such a feat, he determined to seek safety in flight. The column was wheeled about and in good order, but at a reasonably rapid rate, all things considered; was marched through Amissville again to Gaine's Cross-Roads, where the services of a colored man were obtained to guide it to a place of safety. Passing through Little Washington, the vicinity of Warrenton was reached late at night, where camp-fires were discovered, and it became a question as to which side the camp belonged. It was finally settled upon that MAJ. BAXTER, of the First Maine, should advance alone, and obtain the coveted information. He entered the camp, and finding everybody asleep, del berately dismounted, walked up to a sleeping soldier and shook him, when the following dialogue took place:

MAJOR—"Say, you, to what regiment do you belong?"

SOLDIER—(Half asleep)—"Twelfth."

MAJOR—"Twelfth what?"

SOLDIER—"Twelfth Virginia cavalry."

MAJOR—"All right."

SOLDIER—(Who by this time was fairly awake)—"To what do you belong?"

MAJOR—"Never mind—it's all right," and springing upon his horse he rode rapidly away to inform Col. SMITH that it was a rebel camp. The column was again speedily reversed, and notwithstanding the jaded condition of the horses and men they were forced along at a pretty rapid rate through by-roads and fields, taking a circuitous route to New-Baltimore, Major BROWN conducting the advance, where they arrived in safety. Soon after day-light Tuesday morning the command reached a corn-field within a few miles of Bristoe Station, and, as may well be believed, all felt a sense of relief at being so near their friends again. Here the command made a halt to feed after a continuous march of nearly 60 miles in little more than twenty-four hours—most of the time surrounded by enemies in hugely superior numbers. To the credit of the colonel in command be the fact should be added, that he lost in this expedition only some 30 men, all of them were captured (probably) while attempting to communicate with Gen. GAGNE, as ordered, and the balance were lost by reason of their horses giving out.

On Monday the great question under consideration at headquarters was, what the enemy proposed to do. It was not known then, nor is now, where the main force of the enemy had gone. Gen. MEADE having decided to offer battle across the Rappahannock, put forward BUFORD's cavalry division at noon to clear the way, and immediately command the Fifth, Second and Sixth corps, which were formed in line of battle in the order named, from right to left, the whole under the command of Gen. SEDGWICK, while the other troops were held in reserve for emergencies. Gen. BUFORD advanced, driving the enemy before him to between Brandy Station and Culpepper—the Fifth corps on the right and the Sixth corps on the left, advancing at supporting distance all the time, gradually closing in upon the centre, leaving the Second corps as a reserve. But Gen. LEE did not see fit to accept the gage of battle thus tendered, and, therefore, at night our troops were withdrawn to the left bank of the river. This movement, together with other information obtained, rendered it quite certain that LEE was marching his whole force northward, and measures were adopted, accordingly, to meet the emergency. The vast trains of supplies and ammunition had to be set in motion and protected in their transit northward—a gigantic task, which was accomplished without the loss of trains or supplies. The infantry columns were set in motion and the cavalry divisions were ordered to cover the flanks and rear. All day Tuesday the long armies moved on parallel lines, and as settlers took place. At about 4 o'clock Wednesday morning, Gen. GAGNE's division of cavalry and the Second corps were attacked simultaneously by A. P. HILL's corps. The first warning of the presence of the enemy came in the shape of shell and round shot. As well may be supposed there was a momentary panic in camp, and some amusing and ridiculous scenes occurred; but all the actors were numerous, and they did no more than what a majority of people would do under similar circumstances, I forbear mentioning details. It is sufficient to know, however—and it was a fortunate circumstance—that the troops were quickly in hand—and so well managed that the enemy gained no advantage whatever—except taking a few stragglers prisoners—by the nocturnal attack. They were repulsed and driven back both by the cavalry and infantry. This little affair was, perhaps, a fortunate occurrence for us, because it revealed, to a certain extent, not only the object but the desperation of the enemy. He had unmistakably calculated that by making a night attack our troops would be stampeded, and under the excitement the different corps formed could be whipped in detail. But LEE made a slight mistake in selecting the Second corps upon which to try his experiment. By 9 o'clock all the columns were in motion again, and no other demonstration was made by the enemy until late in the afternoon, when, just as the last of the Fifth corps had crossed Kettle Run, near Bristoe Station, HILL opened his batteries upon the Pennsylvania Reserves in rear of the column, killing three men and wounding a number. This attack did not interrupt the advance of the corps. Soon after, the advance of the Second corps approached Kettle Run on the east side of the railroad. To a lot of desperadoes—for in no other way can so foolhardy an act be accounted for—HILL opened his batteries upon this corps, and there was a grand rush to secure the railroad, the embankment of which formed, in many places, a formidable breastwork. The two divisions (First and Second) of the Second corps advanced and obtained this position. The enemy, led by their officers, as it said, rushed up to this breastwork, when a fearful slaughter took place in their ranks, our own troops suffering but little, as only their heads were exposed. As one division of the enemy approached, a signal of surrendering was made, when our men withheld their fire, and Capt. BALL of the Second Minnesota, jumped upon the railroad track to receive them, when a volley was fired at him and he received three serious wounds. This act of treachery had a maddening effect upon our men, and for a time the slaughter was terrible. Three times our men charged across the railroad, driving the enemy before them like frightened sheep on each occasion, capturing not less than 500 prisoners and one battery—all from North Carolina troops. Fifty of these prisoners have already taken the oath of allegiance, and many of them are half convinced that LEE purposely sent them into this trap as a punishment for the well-known want of devotion that exists among the North Carolina troops to the cause of Jeff. DAVIS. Be this as it may, I am assured by those who ought to know that a majority of the North Carolina soldiers will desert the failing fortunes of the Confederate cause whenever opportunity occurs. At about dark a lively artillery duel was opened, and kept up for an hour or two without any great damage to either side—the enemy finally withdrawing—LEE, doubtless, no doubt, that the Army of the Potomac was not to be caught asleep. The scene after nightfall was fearfully grand and imposing. The night was very dark, and while every discharge of artillery could be distinctly seen, belching forth fire spitefully like so many demons, and the shells could be heard as they passed through the air, the actors in this fearful tragedy were not visible. To the observer it conveyed an idea of the damned engaged in destroying each other in some infernal pit prepared by the hand of Omnipotence. Bending on an adjacent hill-side overlooking this conflict, every echo being repeated by the surrounding hills, the sound of the shells and shot whirring through the air, as it was echoed to my ears through the boughs of a pine forest near at hand, produced a moaning, unearthly sound, as if the pit which the imagination depicted was a reality, and the sounds I heard were the groans and sighs of a hell full of souls in misery.

This attack seemed to render it certain that the enemy proposed to risk another battle on Manassas Plains. The Commanding General, undoubtedly, was ready for such a battle, and the troops were placed in position, but no enemy came; not appearing on Thursday, the troops were all moved across Bull Run, and the cavalry left to guard the fords. Thursday the First Maine cavalry was sent out on a reconnoissance. The regiment found the enemy's cavalry in some force near Manassas Junction, and after a brief fight retired, losing one man killed and two wounded in the conflict. Friday and Saturday were devoted to studying out the intentions and whereabouts of the enemy. At present the indications are that he will not risk a pitched battle, but has become alarmed at the appearance of the Army of the Potomac, as managed by Gen. MEADE, and is retiring. The mystery still be solved within a few days.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

THE PRESIDENT'S CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS

Governor Seymour Appeals to the Citizens to Reinforce the Army.

A PROCLAMATION BY HORATIO SEYMOUR, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF NEW-YORK.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, ALBANY, Oct. 20, 1863.

The President of the United States has called upon me, as Governor of the State of New-York, to furnish its quota of three hundred thousand men, to recruit the volunteer forces of the United States, which will be largely reduced during the coming year, by the expiration of the terms of enlistment.

At this time the defenders of the National Capital are menaced by a superior force; the army of the Cumberland is in an impoverished condition, and the military operations of the Government are delayed and hindered by the want of adequate military power, and are threatened with serious disaster.

In this emergency it is the duty of all citizens to listen to the appeal put forth by the President, and to give efficient and cheerful aid in filling up the thinned ranks of our armies. It is due to our brethren in the field, who have battled so heroically for the flag of our country, the Union of the States, and to uphold the Constitution, that prompt and voluntary assistance should be sent to them in this moment of their peril. They must feel that the full confidence that they would at all times receive from their fellow-citizens at home a generous and efficient support. Every emotion of pride and patriotism should impel me to give this by voluntary and cheerful contributions of men and money, and not by a forced conscription, or coercive action on the part of the Government.

The President also advises the citizens of the several States that, in the event of the failure to raise the quotas assigned to them, a draft shall be made for the deficiency, to commence on the 5th day of January next.

Let only these duty to our soldiers be the call and the honor of the nation demand that we shall maintain to fill our armies by voluntary enlistments, but the interests of all classes in society will be promoted by the success of this system. The unequal burdens which conscription unavoidably inflicts on a portion of society, not only causes great distress and injury to individuals, but are more hurtful to the whole community than the equalized distribution of the cost and sacrifices of volunteering which more perfectly adjusts itself to the condition of all classes. The bounties which will be paid by the General Government and in this State by the Government of New-York, are extremely liberal, and much larger than those heretofore given. They will aid the volunteers who shall enter the service to make immediate and ample provision for those dependent upon them. I expect all classes of our citizens to assist in recruiting volunteers called for from this State, by their influence, and by liberal contributions, and I call upon all State officials to give every assistance in their power to promote enlistments into our armies, and thus save our citizens from the squalidness, privations, and sufferings of the draft and at the same time animate our soldiers by an exhibition of sympathy and patriotic devotion, and give strength to our armies in their battles for the preservation of the Union.

HORATIO SEYMOUR.

THE WAR IN MISSISSIPPI.

The Defeat of Chambers and Richardson—Gallant Fighting by Our Troops—Details of the Six Days' Operations.

The Memphis Bulletin of the 17th gives additional particulars of military operations on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad. Our force at Collierville was less than 500, without artillery, commanded by Lieut. JAMES, Third United States cavalry, a member of Gen. SHERMAN's staff, and Gen. SHERMAN himself, as previously reported.

Opposed to us were eleven rebel regiments, under CHAMBERS and RICHARDSON, numbering, it is said, 6,000, with nine pieces of artillery. Our loss was 14 killed and 64 wounded and missing. The rebel loss was about 150.

During the pursuit of CHAMBERS by Col. RASCH, the latter came up with the former at Ingraham's Mills, three miles south of Raphales, where, after a two hours' fight, the rebels were dislodged from a very strong position, where their guns were advantageously posted and their infantry well covered.

The position was carried by Col. PHILLIPS' brigade, the Seventh Illinois and Seventh Kansas leading the charge. The enemy lost upwards of 50 killed and wounded, and then retreated three miles south to Tallahatchie, where they took strong position at the town of Wyatt. A deep trench has been dug around the town, and reinforcements had arrived. The enemy occupied the river side with 3,000 to 4,000 men and 9 pieces of artillery.

Col. HASCH had about 3,500 men, two brigades under Col. PHILLIPS and Col. MERRIAM, and eight pieces of artillery in the centre.

The enemy made two desperate charges on our right and left, which were repulsed with considerable loss, they leaving their dead in our hands.

Night coming on the battle ceased. But at about 9 o'clock Col. HASCH charged on the town, drove the rebels, panic-stricken, into the run and across the bridge, leaving in our hands about 300 rifles and seventy-five prisoners.

During the six days' fighting and skirmishing, from the battle of Collierville to this last affair, about 600 rebels were killed, and a large number taken prisoners, and a considerable quantity of arms captured.

"PEACE"

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Oct. 20.

The Richmond Enquirer, of the 15th inst., contains the following editorial, entitled "Peace," which must profoundly interest alike the friends and enemies of the country:

"Have on our own terms we can accept no peace whatever, and must fight till doomsday rather than yield an iota of them, and our terms are:

"Recognition by the enemy of the independence of the Confederate States.

"Withdrawal of the Yankee forces from every foot of Confederate ground, including Kentucky and Missouri.

"Withdrawal of the Yankee soldiery from Maryland, until that State shall decide by a free vote whether she shall remain in the old Union or sub admission into the Confederacy.

"Consent on the part of the Federal Government to give up to the Confederacy its proportion of the navy as it stood at the time of secession, or to pay for the same.

"Yielding up of all pretension on the part of the Federal Government to that portion of the old Territories which lies west of the Confederate States.

"An equitable settlement on the basis of our absolute independence and equal rights of all accounts of the public debt and public lands, and the advantages accruing from foreign ventures.

"These provisions, we apprehend, comprise the minimum of what we must require before we lay down our arms. That is to say, the North must yield all,—we nothing. The whole profession of that country to prevent by force the separation of the States must be abandoned, which will be equivalent to an avowal that our enemies were wrong from the first, and, of course, as they waged a causeless and wicked war upon us, they ought in strict justice to be required, according to usage in such cases, to reimburse to us the whole of our expenses and losses in the course of the war. Whether, this last point be insisted on or not, certain we are that we cannot have any peace at all until we shall be in a position not only to demand and exact, but also to enforce and collect, treasure for our own reimbursement out of the wealthy cities in the enemy's country. In other words, unless we can destroy or scatter their armies, and break up their Government, we can have no peace, and if we can do that, then we ought not only to extort from them our own full terms and ample indemnity for their wrong, but also a handsome indemnity for the trouble and expense caused to us by their crime.

"Now, we are not yet in position to dictate those terms to our enemies, with Rosecrans' army still in the heart of our country, and MEADE still on Virginia soil, but though it is too soon to propose such conditions to them, yet it is important that we should keep them plainly before our own eyes as the only admissible basis of any conceivable peace. This would be the feeling with which our minds would be more nearly looking for a war from Europe, as if that blessed peace were to come to us over the sea, and not to be conquered on our own ground. There will be no more gaining for basis of recognition, and filling of the belly with the East wind; no more distraction or discussion from the single momentous business of bending up every nerve and energy of the country for battle.

"It is capability now, at the moment when great and perhaps decisive battles are impending at two or three points, that we think it most essential to insist upon the grand and entire magnificence of the stake and cause.

"Once more we say it is all or nothing. This Confederacy or the Yankee nation, one or other, goes down, down to perdition. That is to say, one or the other must forfeit its national existence and lie at the mercy of its mortal enemy.

"We all know by this time the fate in store for us if we succumb. The other party has no smaller stake.

"As surely as we completely ruin their armies—and without that is no peace nor truce at all—so surely shall we make them pay our war debt, though we wring it out of their hearts. And they know it well, and, therefore, they cannot hesitate to exert strength their utter exhaustion and absolute inability to strike another blow.

"The stake they have to forfeit, then, if they lose this dreadful game, has vital as ours. So is the stake to be won if they win anything. It is no less than the entire possession of our whole country, with its land, and everything that is ours, from Ohio to the Rio Grande, to have and to hold, to them and their heirs forever.

"But, on the other hand, what we mean by win is utter separation from them for all time. We do not want to govern their country, but after levying upon it what seemeth good to us by way of indemnity, we leave it to commence its political life again from the beginning, hoping that the lesson may have made them sadder and wiser Yankees.

"We shut them out forever, with all their useless and scoundrelly ways, intending to lead our lives here in our own Confederate way, within our own well-guarded bounds, and without, as St. John says, are dogs.

"And let no Confederate feeble knees and tremulous heart-strings say to us, this complete triumph is impossible; say that we must be content with some kind of compromise, and give and take; on the contrary, we must gain all or lose all, and that the Confederates will indeed win the great game, we take to be as certain as any future event in this uncertain world.

"MEADE's army and ROSECRANS' once scattered, Lincoln can get no more armies. The draft turns out manifestly a fearful failure. The German and Irish element are now for peace. The Yankees have to bear the brunt of the war themselves, but in the meantime their inevitable bankruptcy is advancing like an armed man. Hungry ruin has them in the wind. It cannot be long before the Cabinet of Washington will have, indeed, to consider seriously proposals for peace, under auspices and circumstances very different from the present. For the present the war rolls and thunders on, and may God defend the right."

THE MECHANICS.

A RIPPLE PREVENTED OF LABOR AND LABORERS.

The Richmond Examiner, of the 12th inst., says that on Saturday, the 10th inst., a very large and spontaneous meeting of the mechanics and working-men of Richmond was held to consider their interests and obtain a free expression of the sentiments of the people generally.

From the resolutions passed, we select the two following:

"Resolved, That combined to a cause of the object aspiration to which labor and we who labor have been reduced, and to the privileges which in common with all the institutions of our country vest in us, we will not cease again until our grievances shall be redressed, and the immunities which we were so suddenly deprived of, until our just demands have been met by the commencement of all opposing elements.

"Resolved, That it is the duty of the Government to take care of the unfortunate, and not the rich.

The Enquirer is extremely indignant at this assemblage, and deals with the "working men" in the following fashion:

"The mechanics of Richmond enjoy all the rights and immunities that any and every other men enjoy, and they will not be permitted for grass or shamrock any more. We hope the Legislature of Virginia will not permit itself to be influenced by such ministry resolutions to pass a law forbidden by the experience of all history and opposed by the teachings of every public economist, and which is now opposed by some of the ablest and wisest men of their own body. The men who compose the armies of the Confederacy have, for the last two years, permitted all their 'rights and immunities' to be most materially circumscribed, their 'privileges' reduced to the one high and holy privilege of shooting and being shot for their country. These men, without shoes, blankets, provisions,—in want, and suffering with wounds, and even unto death have nobly and gallantly borne all these hardships, unmurmuring and uncomplaining. Upon what are these sleepless representations to be made? 'grasp?' We leave the Governor and Mayor to answer these questions, and to interpret these resolutions, and to decide what their respective duties may be when the 'grasping' and 'redressing' begins.

"The question of fixing prices of maximum is one of season and discussion. The Mob-Jacobin violence of Paris forced it through the Convention of 1793, and this meeting on Saturday night looks as though the same influence had to be resorted to in Richmond. Mrs. Jackson demanded 'blood or money' of the Governor; Gwen, last Spring, and, failing to get either there, retreated, with her accomplice, Mrs. Lincoln, to 'grass' and 'shamrock' land, and shows, and everything else, which drives from the mercantile mind. She took the entertainers into her own hands, and is now meditating on the vanity of violence in the State Penitentiary. The Women's mob was treated more ridiculous than criminal—but a jury of blackmen and punished the leaders with imprisonment in the Penitentiary. The Governor of Virginia threatened to fire on the women, and would have executed his threat had they not dispersed."

We continue our extracts from files of late Richmond papers:

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS.

From the Richmond Examiner, Oct. 15th.

A pretty sharp correspondence has taken place between Mr. Robert Ould, our agent for the exchange of prisoners, and Brig.-Gen. S. A. Meredith, United States Commissioner for Exchange, upon which it appears there is a wide difference between the parties as to the number of prisoners with whom each should be credited, and that all arrangements for a further exchange are, for the present, touched in the bud. The controversy, though it had been for some days moving, seems immediately out of the exchange notice, published by Mr. Ould on the 12th of September last, declaring a portion of the Vicksburg garrison again in exchange.

Upon seeing this notice, the Yankee wrote Mr. Ould a long letter, commencing a counter "declaration of exchange," giving a statement, showing, according to his calculation, that the balance of prisoners was against us by over 10,000 citizens, thus charging our Government with bad faith, and disputing the validity of the paroles administered by us to prisoners at Gettysburgh. The following is that portion of his letter where contains his statement of the respective numbers of prisoners on each side.

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF SUSQUEHANNA, FOURTEENTH ARMY CORPS, Baltimore, Sept. 24, 1863.

Maj. Robert Ould, Agent of Exchange, Richmond, Virginia:

SIR: In meet your declaration of exchange of the 12th instant, I inform you that I have this day announced the following:

A declaration of exchange having been entered into by R. Ould, Esq., agent for exchange at Richmond, on the 12th instant, to exact the same in part, as follows, it is hereby declared that all officers and men of the United States now held by the rebels, on parole, previous to the 1st of September, inst., are fully exchanged." By A. MEREDITH, Brigadier-General.

Comparison then follows, showing:

The number of officers covered by the first five months of your declaration 1,238

The number of enlisted men 14,499

The number of officers covered by sixth section 73

The number of enlisted men 2,014

Making a total of officers 1,311

And total of enlisted men 16,513

Approvals

Reduced by enlisted men 2,433

Of the Federal troops on parole therein:

Officers 73

Enlisted men 10,000

Approvals 10,073

Which gives a balance in our favor of 10,244

Meanwhile denies the Gettysburgh paroles to have been valid, and assumes the Confederate Government of bad faith in acting on the supposition that they were.

Mr. Ould makes a long reply, in which he asserts the aspersions of MEREDITH, and establishes the validity of the Gettysburgh paroles. Speaking of MEREDITH's computation of paroles, Mr. OULD says:

Your computation of paroles is incorrect on both sides. As to your item of 1,238 officers and 14,499 enlisted men, by the first five sections of my exchange notice, I have no complaint to make. Some of our Vicksburgh rolls were lost, and I have not the means of making an accurate computation as to them.

Your second item, however, of 73 officers and 2,014 enlisted men, of the sixth section of my exchange notice, is not correct. In the first place, all the officers, or both officers Who Have been delivered at City Point have not exchanged. They were specially exchanged. Maj. Mudson knows that not all Confederate officers who were delivered at City Point up to May 23, 1863, inclusive, and each were declared exchanged up to that date, by the rebel rolls, I treated as the only exchanged up to May 6, 1863. Deliveries at City Point from May 23 to July 31, 1863 (the date named in your notice,) is 6,000, instead of 2,014. The rolls show this very clearly. Of the Federal troops on parole you say there are 73 officers and 13,073 men. If these officers are those delivered at City Point, you make an error against yourself. They have been exchanged. Prior to the 6th of May, 1863, (the time of the last exchange of Federal troops,) we had delivered at City Point, on the 1st of September, 1863, (the time named in your notice,) I have delivered at City Point alone, in privates, 10,073. All of these are on parole. I have other valid paroles in my possession, amounting to at least 10,000 more. Allowing, therefore, that your Vicksburgh computation is correct, you owe me, upon the last section, which is a public one, 10,000 more than I, instead of my owing you 10,024, as you claim. Many of the 10,000 paroles to which I have referred have been acknowledged by Lieut.-Col. DUDLEY in his correspondence. So much as to your computation and your exchange notice based upon it.

In concluding his letter, Mr. OULD says that the Confederate Government now considers itself at liberty to pursue any course it thinks proper with regard to exchanges and paroles.

THE WAR IN TENNESSEE.

THE SITUATION.

A correspondent writes from in front of Chattanooga:

"So far as I have been able to judge, the feeling of the soldiers is one of regret that Gen. BRAGG has passed in his operations to squabble with his officers. I suppose that these have already, in the proper time, been reported to Richmond, in the usual quiet manner. As for Gen. HARDEE, his case is less known and more prejudicially considered. But as for POLK and FORREST, there is not a difference of opinion. Whether POLK was right or wrong, no one doubts his integrity, his courage and his manhood. If he was wrong, it was not intentional; and, as you, as one is prepared to say that he was in fault. Many believe him to be prosecuted. FORREST, on the other hand, is a universal favorite in both branches of the service, and it may be said he has proved his ability on almost every battle-field. The mention is turning against the Commanding General. Otherwise the morale of the troops is excellent. They only need to be led to victory.

"ROSECRANS has been untiring in his labors. He has fortified Chattanooga to perfection. There is hardly a rising ground anywhere but is mounted by guns and breastworks. His posts are already shell-proof. His rifle-pits extend round and around the town, in deep dykes from Brabson Hill, and the river, to the Lookout. They are manned from night till morning, from morning till night. The works on Bush Hill are very fine. So are those looking toward Lookout. The view of all these is clear and bright from the ridge. You may take a glass any time and see the Yankee sentries pacing along their parapets, Yankee officers riding from post to post, and Yankee flags flying from a hundred staffs.

"I am sure I cannot tell what is to be done. It is confidently believed that Gen. LONGSTREET or Joe JOHNSTON is to be placed in command. Gen. BRAGG has fought and won a fight or last, and so he has his highest meaning of hard work must need rest. His disagreement with his officers is also a reason for his change. We need also a new man. We want energetic. Whether LONGSTREET is the person or not I am not prepared to say. He may be, and then again he may not be. We will have to take some risk, and may as well risk the matter with him as any one else. Although I know I am nothing at all, I protest that he will beat the head of the army to lose them yet days.

I was talking with a Colonel from Virginia lately, who gave me some interesting particulars about the affair made some time ago to offer Gen. LEE to the West. Numerous epistles passed between the President, as sent for LEE. In their conversation LEE said he was unwilling to leave the command, and consequently the President did not urge him. LONGSTREET was sent instead. The end will be that he will be put in supreme command.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Moral Aspects of Our City.

The sixth discourse of the Rev. C. C. Goss, on the Moral Aspects of our City, was delivered in the Tabernacle of the Christian Alliance, Broadway, Sunday. It was replete with statistical information in respect to the past and present condition of our city. While lawyers and other professional men have kept up in numbers with the population, ministers have been greatly behind. We have 1,400 lawyers, 1,[illegible] physicians, [illegible] policemen, but only 300 ministers. The increase rate of our population from 1800 to 1860 was 34 per cent., while that of our churches was much less; in 1800 the numbers were [illegible] an increase of 94 per cent. The same year we had 124 churches—an increase of 41 per cent. In 1850 our population was 515,394—an increase of 89 per cent., while our churches only numbered 258, or 21 per cent. This calculation includes all the sects. Catholics have increased in ratio exceeding the population. In 1850 they had four churches. In 1860—2, 50 to 75 per cent. increase; in 1860—12, in 371 per cent. increase; in 1862—63, 60 to 70 per cent. increase. The average per cent. of the population attending church was 60. Protestants are much falling off their churches by 1860 numbered 90; in 1863-64, not 62 per cent.; in 1864—[illegible], or 40 per cent. [illegible] Catholics have not fared much better, their increase. The contents of 1860, reports 104,000 persons in the habit of attending church, [illegible] of these are located in Catholics and 54,000 in Protestants. Colored people attend better than the whites. In Brooklyn, on a [illegible] Sunday morning, 102,000 were counted as attending church, out of a population of 300,000 persons. It being in church, out of 500,000 of its 2,000,000 souls. It has the largest congregation, numbering 120,000 persons. London is worse; only 500,000 of its 2,000,000 souls can be accommodated in churches, and only 11 per cent. are regular attendants. We have 300 churches at present of all denominations, being a proportion of 30 ward church, [illegible] Our present efforts have not kept pace with the growth of the population. Our present condition is inadequate to the work to be accomplished. They are not sufficient, but insufficient for all that is to be done. Why should we augment our police force annually and not also our moral force? In fact the persuasive influences of the Gospel at as much ten per cent. as the coercive force of the police? Why pay in the one, $400,000, and in the other, $[illegible]? We must roll back the tide of sin that is constantly gaining upon us. "Crime and its cure," was the subject announced for next Sunday evening.

Fires During the Riots.

We are under obligations to Fire-Marshal Kiernan for the following very interesting schedule of the fires during the riots. All of these were the work of the rioters. Twelve occurred on Monday, July 13, destroying or damaging twenty-eight buildings; eleven occurred on Tuesday, destroying or damaging twenty-five buildings; seven occurred on Wednesday, destroying or damaging five buildings and two lumber-yards. The total of fires in the three days was thirty; of buildings damaged forty-nine; destroyed four; lumber-yards two.

The cause at which the fires occurred are suggestive of the activity of the rioters, the danger to the surrounding property where they occurred, and of the unceasing efforts necessary to prevent wide-spreading conflagration.

It is a singular fact that after the last fire, at 11 P. M., on Wednesday, when the mobs thoroughly terror stricken, had begun to feel that they were beaten, no fire occurred in any part of the City for 48 hours—an exemption most remarkable. The bells which had theretofore been sounding almost incessantly, preserved for that period an unusual silence, and the element whose appearance it was theirs to dispel, seemed chained with its wrath in obscure, and shingled dens under the rules it had created.

Hon. Hamilton Fish Contributing the Police.

THE EIGHTEENTH PRECINCT,

SETH C. HAWLEY, Esq., Chief Clerk to the Police Commissioners, recently received a letter highly complimentary to the Eighteenth Ward Police, from the Hon. Hamilton Fish, inclosing a check for $100, to be appropriated forward purchasing an American flag and flag-pole for the new Station-house of that Precinct.

Below will be found the letter of Mr. Fish and the acknowledgement of Mr. Hawley, as also that of Capt. Carlisle, of the Eighteenth Precinct:

GARRISON, PUTNAM COUNTY, N. Y., Aug. 4, 1863.

Seth C. Hawley, Esq., Chief Clerk:

MY DEAR SIR: I shall be under obligations to the Police Board if they will appropriate the money I have inclosed in your letter of 24 inst., to the purchase of an American flag and flag-pole, to be presented to the Police force of the Eighteenth Ward.

The efficiency and discipline of the Police of New-York are subjects of just and increasing pride and satisfaction to the citizens. Their labors and endurance are our security and protection, and to their manly conduct and courtesy in defiance of social order and in protection of personal rights and of property, (especially of this unwary), are due our thanks.

I am glad to contribute mites to the Police force of New-York.

It is not from any invidious comparison that I wish to present the flag to the force of the Eighteenth Precinct—not that they have done better than others, for all have done well, but they are my more immediate neighbors, and several gentlemen residing nearest have given me frequent evidence of willingness, their efficiency, and have spared me many minor annoyances, and by acts of courtesy and of civilities.

With much respect, yours truly, HAMILTON FISH.

P. S.—If the hundred dollars will not suffice to procure a handsome and suitable flag and pole, I will gladly add to the amount, so that the flag may be worthy of the parties to whom it is to be presented.

MORRISTOWN, PUTNAM COUNTY, N. Y., No. 240 MORRISTOWN, New-York, Oct. 15, 1863.

Capt. Carlisle, Eighteenth Precinct:

SIR: On the occasion of taking possession of the Station-house prepared for your use in place of the previous one destroyed during the July riots, I take the honor to deliver to you for the Police force of your precinct the inclosed present of one hundred dollars, and a complimentary letter, from the Hon. HAMILTON FISH.

You will please read the letter to the force under your command, and take measures to apply the donation to the purpose indicated therein.

This is a valuable testimonial and a high compliment to you and your force, from a distinguished citizen residing in your precinct. These earnest expressions of commendation, are grounds for justifiable pride and a motive for exertions to discharge in future all the arduous duties of policemen thoroughly and bravely.

You will extend your acknowledgments directly to Gov. FISH. I am very respectfully yours,

R. C. HAWLEY, Chief Clerk.

MORRISTOWN, PUTNAM COUNTY, PRECINCT No. 18, New-York, Oct. 14, 1863.

Hon. Hamilton Fish:

DEAR SIR: I have received through S. C. Hawley, Esq., Chief Clerk of the Metropolitan Police, a letter from yourself, couched in the most generous terms, inclosing one hundred dollars ($100) for the purchase of a new flag and flag-staff for the new Station-house of the Eighteenth Precinct.

On my own [illegible] command, I beg [illegible] ful acknowledgements.

To deserve such an opinion as you express generally is our highest ambition, and this voluntary testimonial from a large taxpayer in the City of order and prosperity of the Precinct, and the City at large is doubly acceptable. That we may continue to merit the confidence of all whose confidence is worth possessing is the sincere wish of

Very respectfully yours,

JOHN CAMERON, Captain Eighteenth Precinct.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

Gen. ROSECRANS has been relieved from command, and Gen. THOMAS has been put in his stead. Gen. GRANT takes command of the Department and of the three armies known as BURNSIDE'S, ROSECRANS', and GRANT'S, and all operations will be conducted under GRANT'S order.

Gen. BURNSIDE is reported by the rebels to be advancing into Western Virginia with fourteen thousand cavalry for the purpose of making a raid on the East Tennessee Railroad, and doubtless also intending the destruction of the great salt works near Abingdon. They acknowledge that he had engaged and driven their forces, with a loss of 300 killed and wounded, from Bible Ridge to Greeneville, and thence was advancing on Abingdon. He is also said to have organized three regiments of Tennessee "renegades," and that 4,000 refugees were following his army.

From the Army of the Potomac information is brought that a body of our cavalry yesterday penetrated to Warrenton Junction, some distance beyond Manassas, finding only scattered cavalry pickets of the enemy, who retired at our approach. A report also came from the front to the effect that LEE was vigorously embarking his entire force at Culpepper for the purpose of running them down the East Tennessee and Virginia road to crush BURNSIDE, having taken the precaution first to destroy the railroad from Manassas to the Rappahannock. In order to delay MEADE should he attempt pursuit. The railroad is represented to have been so thoroughly destroyed that our engineers at their utmost can repair no more than a mile a day. Prisoners captured yesterday assert that LEE's plan in the recent movement was to press MEADE upon Washington, destroy the railroad and then make a rapid demonstration against BURNSIDE.

In response to the call of the President of the United States for volunteers, Gov. SEYMOUR, yesterday, issued his proclamation urging the people of the State to promptly furnish the quota of soldiers required of them, and thus avoid the hardships of a draft. Gov. SEYMOUR also states many other reasons why the call of the President should receive a full and cheerful compliance.

GENERAL NEWS.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors yesterday, Mr. BLUNT presented a preamble and ordinance relative to the call for volunteers made by the President, and proposing to turn the present Substitute and Relief Committee into a recruiting agency, in order to fill out the City's quota by voluntary enlistments, with power to grant a special bounty of $300 to each volunteer. The subject was referred to the Substitute and Relief Committee. The amount proposed to be raised for the new fund is $2,000,000. Of the $3,000,000 voted to relieve conscripts from the draft, only about $650,000 is likely to be used, and already over 1,700 cases have been acted upon, and over 1,600 substitutes furnished.

In the Court of Sessions, yesterday, before Recorder HOFFMAN, ALOIS SCHUARTZ was tried for robbing his room-mate, AUGUSTUS ABNER, of $60, and acquitted. SUSAN THOMPSON was convicted of stealing a gold watch from GEO. KIRKLAND, and remanded for sentence.

Mr. S. B. CHITTENDEN, of Brooklyn, has written a letter to Hon. MOSES F. ODELL, suggesting an effort to raise 300 men for the Brooklyn Fourteenth; proposing, as his part of the work, to contribute the sum of $10,000, to be divided among them—$50 to each man—in addition to all National, State, and Municipal bounties which may be available to such volunteers—payable when the whole number of men are mustered into service and ready to march.

A dispatch dated at Harrisburgh, Oct. 19, states that the official returns of the election, as far as received, give Gov. CURTIN 11,824 majority. The counties yet to hear from are Butler, Cameron, Clearfield, Elk, Forest, Greene, Jefferson, Potter, Somerset, Susquehanna, Tioga, Venango, Warren, Washington, and Wayne. So far as the returns are in, the vote for Gov. CURTIN leads Judge AGNEW about 5,000 votes. This will be increased to 10,000. The Senate will stand 17 Republicans to 16 Democrats, and the House 53 Republicans to 48 Democrats.

The patterns have been made and the preparations commenced at the Fort Pitt Foundry, Pittsburgh, for the casting of a gun which will have a bore of twenty inches. Its length will be twenty feet, and its greatest diameter at the breech five feet four inches. It will weigh about fifty-seven tons.

The United States steam frigate Niagara, left her moorings off Long Wharf, Boston, on Saturday and proceeded to sea. It is stated that she is bound to Gloucester for the purpose of completing her complement of seamen.

Fifteen men are supposed to have been buried alive, on Monday, by the caving in of the earth in Jacob-street, Troy, where a sewer was in course of excavation. At last accounts four bodies and one living man had been recovered.

Gen. J. J. VIELE, for some time a Brigadier and afterwards a Major-General in the State Militia, died near Troy a day or two since. He was formerly a prominent Democratic politician, but recently voted with the Republicans.

The Cleveland Herald of Monday gives election returns from all but four counties, which make BROUGH'S majority 62,146 on the home vote.

Late letters from Europe mention that an edition of Mr. BURLINGAME'S speech on "Our Foreign Relations," was printing at Paris under the direction of Mr. DUBOUCHY, the indefatigable Consul of the United States at that capital.

Gold fell 3½ per cent. yesterday, closing at 147½@147¾ ¥ cent. The demand for the Popular Loan reached on the day over two millions of dollars. The old loaners generally adhered to their decision, and the 7-30 notes fell to the 7.40 ¥ cent. The Railway speculation was firmer than on Monday. Exchange, in the early part of the day, 166@166, but lower and unsettled at the close.

Breadstuffs were less active yesterday, and somewhat unsettled in price. Provisions attracted less attention at former rates. Groceries, Metals, Oils, Hops, Hemp, Seeds, Spices, Fruit and Candles were moderately sought after. Cotton was inactive and depressed. Hay, Leather, Tallow, Wool and Tobacco were in good demand. Whisky was more freely purchased and was dearer. Moderate freight engagements were reported.

The Live Stock Markets are filled to overflowing this week, and lower prices with a surplus on hand are reported in each department. The approach of cold weather, when stall-feeding will be necessary, leads farmers to diminish their flocks and herds, especially as there is every prospect that corn, hay and other feed will rule high. Farmers say it will not pay to fatten stock in the vicinity of this City with corn at about $1 ¥ bushel, and other feed in proportion. . . Beef cattle are in greater supply than ever before, the total for the week being 7,291, of which 5,068 were on sale at Forty-fourth-street, 5,300 of them on Monday. This was too much for such warm soft weather, but after sending some 300 away to feed for another week and lowering the prices ½c.@1c. ¥ lb., the balance were all sold. Most of the cattle were of good quality, which kept the average of the market at about 8c. . . Sheep and lambs are plenty, and 25c. ¥ head lower than last week. Fat sheep are selling at 8½c. ¥ lb., live weight. . . Hogs are plenter than at any previous market this season. The weather is too warm for quick sales, and prices have declined ½c., the best bringing 8½c. ¥ lb., live weight. Receipts, 31,920 for the week.

The Vote of the Soldiers Against the Copperheads.

Will some Anti-Administration man, who is want to protest that his party is very sharp-set against the rebellion, have the goodness to tell us why the vote of the soldiers, when they have the chance to vote, goes so overwhelmingly against its candidates? Don't the soldiers know what good, still loyalty is? Don't they go for it when they see it? Either they must be very dull in apprehension, or very deficient in public spirit—or there must be some screw loose in Copperhead patriotism. Now, how is it? Are the soldiers fools? Or are they renegades? Will some Copperhead tell us which? If they are neither, what then are we to think of their judgment of the Copperheads?

Possibly it may be intimated that the officers are all for the Administration because they hope for promotion, and the soldiers because they fear the officers. We doubt, however, whether any responsible man of the opposition will seriously aver this, however much he may hint it. It would be a very bold act. Even could it be plausibly made out that the officers were all a pack of sordid adventurers, caring everything for self and nothing for country, it would be pretty tough business to maintain that the half million of American citizens in the rank and file are subject to their political orders—that they have ceased to be freemen and become mere liegemen and vassals. Copperhead audacity we know is great; but it is not quite equal to that. It is too well established that Americans don't yield their manhood in any such fashion.

But the hard fact stands. Wherever the soldiers have the power to vote, they invariably use that power with trenchant effect upon the enemies of the Administration. They don't strike the rebels with the sword one whit more resolutely than they do the Copperheads with the franchise. In fact not half so much so—for here they never give quarter. All the VALLANDIGHAM breed, of whatever stripe, they smite hip and thigh. Old-Line Democrats, Old-Line Whigs, Republicans, Abolitionists—they are all alike in that respect, delivering their blows with the same exterminating vengeance. The Copperheads themselves long ago opened their eyes to the fact that every man in uniform is his natural enemy. They long ago did their best to protect themselves by barring them from the ballot-box—the only way in which protection was possible to them. In some of the States they succeeded. By far-fetched technicalities, they put themselves completely out of the reach of the men that fight for the flag. They account this great strategy. And so it is. It is the only thing that saves their breath of life.

There can be no rational way of accounting for this mutual enmity between the soldiers and the Copperheads, except by the fact that the soldiers hate the rebellion with a heartier, honester hatred. It is the different quality of patriotism that makes the division. The soldiers go for the Union without condition or qualification—are for defending it to the last extremity—are ready to suffer for it, to bleed for it, to die for it. The Copperheads go for the Union only on certain conditions, are eager to make terms with the rebels, and study only how to paralyze the Administration which fights the rebels. The antagonism between the two springs essentially from the one distinction—that the army is the embodiment of the war spirit against the rebellion, while the Anti-Administration party is the conglomerate of everything that has, in any measure greater or less, a sympathy with the rebellion. Between such principles and tendencies, it is not possible that there could be anything else than antagonism. Accord between the two is as impossible as between fire and water, or light and darkness.

This staunch, consistent, thorough-going loyalty of the army is a mighty political fact. Its influence in bracing the hearts of loyal civilians all over the land, and nerving the arms of those who officially direct the war, is beyond measure valuable. In fact it may, we believe, be truly said that the National cause would be utterly, hopelessly lost, if the army should imbibe the spirit or become partial to the policy of the enemies of the Administration. The war would inevitably languish and die under such a military feeling. Thank heaven, it is not in the human nature to lapse in any such way as that. Every day's perils encountered for his flag only make the soldier all the more devoted to it; and he worships it the most, when most rent by the battle's rage. The war is one constant school of patriotic training to all engaged in it. The army has, from the beginning, hated all dictation and compromise, and that hatred will deepen to the end. The soldiers will retain that feeling when their return to civil life; and we may be sure that in their day, at least, copperheadism in any form will never dare lift itself above the dust.

Rosecrans Relieved by Grant.

We have this morning the news that Gen. ROSECRANS has been relieved from the command of the Army of the Cumberland; and that Major-General ULYSSES S. GRANT takes command of that Department and of the Army of the Tennessee, (GRANT'S old army,) the Army of the Cumberland, (ROSECRANS' late army,) and the Army of Kentucky (BURNSIDE'S.) Gen. THOMAS, who fought so splendidly at Chickamauga, takes the immediate command vacated by Gen. ROSECRANS.

It now remains to the great and unconquerable hero of the Mississippi Valley—who has defeated more armies, reduced more strongholds, and conquered more territory than all our other Generals put together, or than any General since the days of NAPOLEON the First—it remains for Major-Gen. GRANT to overcome the rebels now intrenched among the mountains of the West, as he has already routed them through the length and breadth of the great River of the West.

New-York Politics—Judicial Nominations in the City.

It is becoming more and more apparent every day that the gravity of the crisis through which the country is passing, has greatly relaxed the old bonds of party discipline and left private judgment once more free to act in the selection of candidates for public offices. The Democratic party, which was for so long famous for the perfection of its organization, has since the outbreak of the war diminished down to the wretched rump, which received its quietus in the late elections, owing mainly to the determination of the vast majority of the people to vote in accordance with their own notions of right and wrong, and not under the dictation of "managers."

This City, however, has, for obvious reasons, derived less benefit from the revolution than most other parts of the Union. We have in New-York a mass of voters who, owing to no fault either of ours or of our institutions, are grossly ignorant and grossly corrupt. The calm depths of degradation in which they live are not moved by the storms and changes which agitate the surface of the political sea. The Press, the platform and the pulpit do not reach them. The ordinary machinery by which most electors are convinced or roused produces no effect on them. Not one of the men who possess most sway over the hearts and understandings of other American citizens has the least credit or influence among them; and, as might be expected, they have therefore fallen an easy prey to the basest and lowest class of political adventurers—a class peculiar to this City, and surpassing all demagogues which have ever hitherto appeared, in either ancient or modern times, in shamelessness.

All this, instead of furnishing an excuse to the better portion of the community for political inactivity or indifference, in reality makes the display of energy and vigilance an obligation of the strongest and most sacred kind. This has been preached so much both by the Press and the pulpit that we should consider it almost a waste of time now to repeat it, if the recent riots had not furnished the moral with a terrible point. We have long felt that nothing would induce the decent inhabitants of New-York to pay any attention to local politics until their neglect of them endangered their homes and their lives; but things have reached this pass. We were for three days at the mercy of a large mob, bent on destroying property, and on little else, and we have at this moment a Judge on the bench who has all but formally constituted himself their patron and protector.

This person, McCUNN, has been for some time intriguing to procure his nomination by one or both of the cliques who pretend to constitute the "Democracy" of this City, and who really do control the votes of its ignorant classes, for the office of Judge of the Superior Court; and on Monday last, Mozart nominated him for the position, and Tammany at once ratified the nomination. In the course of the great juggle by which municipal offices are annually disposed of, McCUNN'S name has again come up before the public for judicial position; and now nothing except the strenuous exertions of those who know how to read and write, and have something to lose, can save us from the degradation and danger of having him elected. We can in this City, with the force and morality of the rest of the State and the rest of the country at our backs, hold our own against our dangerous classes tolerably well, as long as our Courts are pure; but if the judiciary once falls into the hands of the dregs of the bar—and we are sorry to say that there has been a strong tendency in that direction for some years—there can be no safety whatever for life or property. This was mere theory six months ago. We have since had it practically demonstrated. The Police and the Army saved us in July from one bloody and fiery revolution; but permanent security can only come from upright Judges. The Police can only arrest; it is the Judges who have to warn and punish.

We therefore earnestly beg of decent men of all parties to keep their eye on the judicial nominations for the approaching election, and whatever they do for party, as regards other offices, let them at least have sufficient regard for their neighbors and for their own children, to vote for no man for the office of Judge who has not made a reputation as a good lawyer, and as upright and respectable citizen. On whatever political ticket the name of McCUNN might appear, his behavior during the riots ought of itself to be sufficient to cause his indignant and summary rejection. There are, in addition to this, reasons enough to be found in his position at the Bar and in society for the censure of his name from any ticket on which it may be found. When we state, in the words of BUTTMAN, "that all the arts, and all the sciences, and all branches of trade and commerce, furnish the difficult problems which a Judge has to solve," and that to solve them he has need of all the legal knowledge that the clearest of heads can absorb in a lifetime of patient industry, we state a fact which ought to make a seat on the bench a thing of which men of the class to which McCUNN belongs should not even dream. His holding the office which he now fills has been a disgrace to the City and a disgrace to the Bar; but his admission to the Superior Court, to a bench which such men as OAKLEY and DUER have only just left, would be something a great deal worse; and we trust all respectable Democrats, as well as Republicans, will unite to prevent it.

The Rebel Movement.

No movement that the rebel army has ever made has been so well covered, as to its character, plan and purpose, as the late movement of Gen. LEE. His advance was unexpected, his object has never been discovered, and the numerical strength of his force seems never to have been clearly apprehended. By far the most intelligible account of the rebel march that has yet been given is the detailed letter from the correspondent of the Richmond Enquirer, which we gave in our issue of yesterday. By that it appeared that the whole of the two corps of Gens. HILL and EWELL took part in the movement; and each of the corps had their three Divisions—RODES'S, EARLY'S and JOHNSON'S Divisions forming EWELL'S corps, and HETH, ANDERSON and WILCOX forming the corps of A. P. HILL. It was on Friday, the 9th inst., that this army crossed the Rapidan River, and the rebel writer who accompanied them describes them as being provided with three day's cooked rations, as being in the "finest kind of spirits," and the only drawback to their good appearance was the fact that a number of men in each division were barefooted. They first moved in a northwesterly direction to Madison Court-house—then in an easterly direction to Culpepper, then as we know up to the Rappahannock, from whence they progressed along the line of the railroad as far as Manassas Junction. The whole movement is described as having been conducted with the greatest secrecy, and various ruses were adopted to screen their advance from our view. It is evident that they meant to take MEADE by surprise, and that they also intended to flank him or to get in his rear.

For the last few days we have had no information from the rebels of their progress, and the accounts from our own side have been exceedingly contradictory. This morning, different reports describe them as about to cross the Potomac and enter Pennsylvania, and about to proceed down the East Tennessee Railroad and attack BURNSIDE. At all events, our cavalry have advanced as far as Warrenton Junction and found no rebel army. Whether they have gone up to the Loudon Valley, or across to Tennessee, is the puzzle.

We may be sure that no army of the magnitude of this advanced on a march as long and difficult, unless with some design against MEADE; and if they have gone South already, they must have been very thoroughly thwarted in their purpose.

Amusements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—VERDI'S celebrated dramatic opera of "Macbeth" will be produced here to-night without fail. The role of the heroine is said to be one of Madame MOZART'S best efforts, and it happens curiously enough that the public will have an opportunity of comparing it to-morrow night with CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN'S fine impersonation of the part. This will be a week of Macbeth's, and the Academy of Music monopolizes them all. Signor BELLETTI has entirely recovered from his recent indisposition, and will sustain his celebrated part of Macbeth.

On Friday Miss KELLOGG will appear in "Martha."

On Saturday evening an extra night will be given, when the gaslit opera of "Irene" will be produced for the last time.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—Mrs. JOHN WOOD made a complete change in her bill on Monday night, and succeeded in attracting an overwhelming audience for the occasion. We cannot yet praise the lady for any freshness of material or novelty of place. "Pocahontas" is undoubtedly a good burlesque, but it is old. It has been played at almost every theatre in the City, and, we are sorry to be forced to add, in many instances played better than at the Olympic. We except from this remark the fair lessee, who, in such pieces, is without an equal. Her performance of "Pocahontas" was thoroughly admirable, and left nothing to be desired. It was sufficient in fact to make the audience forget that the minor parts were intrusted to hands that are not yet strong enough to grasp them.

An amusing farce called "My Preserver," preceded the burlesque. It is an ingenious trifle, containing several good character parts, and introducing no fewer than ten members of the company. The fun is undogging, and the laughter was without cessation. Mrs. SHAW, who appeared in this piece, is a desirable addition to Mrs. WOOD'S company, and Mr. T. OWENS, in a small part, created a favorable impression.

MISS CUSHMAN.—The grand performance of "Macbeth," in aid of the funds of the Sanitary Commission, takes place at the Academy of Music to-morrow night. Two of the best tragic artists that America has yet produced sustain the principal characters. We refer, of course, to the patriotic lady under whose auspices the entertainment is given, Miss CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN, and the young tragedian who has always supported her on these occasions, Mr. EDWIN BOOTH. Notwithstanding the high price of admission there is already a rage for the tickets, and the speculators are obtaining heavy premiums.

IRVING HALL.—A select and influential class of the community will thank Miss KELLOGG for a peculiar and agreeable entertainment, which that lady provided last evening, but we fear that the class is too limited for Miss KELLOGG to reciprocate the feeling of thankfulness. The people who do not frequent the theatres, and rarely go to any public performance, are reasonably expected to show their strength when a lyric poem is provided for their delectation, and especially when a fine orchestra is added to the other attractions; but their strength does not seem equal to the efforts that are made to draw it out. Artistically, Miss KELLOGG'S reading of the "Midsummer's Night Dream" was excellent, and the musical illustrations, under the direction of Mr. THOMAS THOMAS, were all that could be desired. Commercially, we fear that the enterprise was a failure—the hall, at all events, was not more than half filled.

This is much to be deplored, inasmuch as that combination of entertainment with music and improvement so happily ought to be repeated with such rare and extraordinary favor. Miss KELLOGG's name is associated with brave efforts of this sort, and we hope that, on the reputation of the entertainment, the public will show a better appreciation of her enterprise.

OUR KEY WEST CORRESPONDENCE.

The Fever at Pensacola Camp, &c.

KEY WEST, FLA., Tuesday, Sept. 29, 1863.

We have news here from Pensacola to Sept. 24. The yellow fever is raging very severely there. Nearly every vessel in port has had cases of it on board. It first broke out in the unhealthy Bluff, caused, it is supposed, by the decaying of vegetables, &c., on board. It has been confined chiefly to vessels coming from the neighborhood of the Mississippi. As soon as it makes its appearance once in a vessel, she is towed over to Santa Rosa Island, where the sick are taken out and placed in tents on the sandy beach. Here they are attended by their surgeons, (if they have one,) or by the surgeons from the Navy-yard, who go over daily in the Black Maria, a stern-wheel steamboat, (or, as it is called there, whistlerrow.) About thirty patients in all have died. In some cases the patient is struck down from the first, and remains unconscious until death, which, in many cases, takes place in a few hours.

The United States steamer Adela has been on a cruise down the coast, stopping at all the stations between here and Pensacola. She reports all well and in a healthy condition except at Pensacola. She was in the harbor four days, and called at the Navy-yard, but owing to the strenuous exertions of Capt. L. N. Sweeney and Surgeon Wm. Gatz, came out scot-free from any sign of the yellow-eyed monster.

The Sea Jackal has been out on a cruise of two weeks, and has eclipsed the last great cruise of the Da Soto, by capturing three schooners—the Alabama, Lady Davis, and Fox. They are all river steamers. The Alabama was shot two months ago for $160,000, she was sent to New-Orleans. The Fox was run on near Mobile Bay, and burned. The Lady Davis was brought here. She is a very pretty little steamer.

There has been no yellow fever at what certainly was disease here this season, nor is there likely to be.

No. 189 East 17th-street.

Robert Roxby, Esq., Chairman of the Union County Committee:

DEAR SIR: It is with sincere pleasure that I learn of my nomination for Register by the Union Convention, which you have the honor to preside over.

To have been chosen by an distinguished a body of my fellow-citizens for the above position, in preference to so many others, is an honor which I gratefully appreciate. You will perceive when I state that my name was submitted to the Republican Union Convention by my friends for the same position, but decided in my honest conviction, of the choice of the Convention, in preference to the claims of Mr. Jesse Kerrigan, therefore it would be very dishonorable in me to accept a nomination in opposition to him.

Under the circumstances, as stated, I must respectfully decline the nomination made by your honorable Convention.

With many thanks and my sincere regards for an marked consideration, I remain truly yours, &c.

JAMES M. THOMSON.

He placed it at one end of the seat and seated himself at the other. The odor from it soon became so exceedingly sickening, and so peculiarly offensive, that he was ordered to take it out. This he did with some demur, remarking, "It is only fresh meat." LEGAL CONSEQUENCES OF THE INSURRECTION STATES.

[Boston Commercial Bulletin, Union Journal.]

[illegible] Commercial interests of this City have been [illegible] by the decision of late, to consider the insurrectionary States, in virtue of their secession, have become [illegible] and Territories, reduced to the condition of Territories divested of Constitution or statute law, perhaps you will show me to state tersely and without argument what are our opinions on this subject.

No public act of the insurgent inhabitants of one or more of the United States, short of a revolution which actually successful and permanently establishing a separate and independent Power, acknowledged as such by other nations, can take out of the Union, or free from under the authority of the General Government and of the Constitution, any one of the States comprising the American Union.

But one inhabitant, or all the inhabitants of a State may, by crime, forfeit their political rights. If all the inhabitants of a State, by some general crime legally chargeable to all, forfeit their political rights, there will be no one remaining legally empowered to act under the Constitution of the State or of the United States.

This is the present condition of the inhabitants of the insurgent States. The Supreme Court (Cliquot's Champagne, Bullmore, &c., vs. United States, March Term, 1866,) has decided that these inhabitants, without distinction as to individual loyalty or disloyalty, have, in law, the same rights as any foreign enemies invading the land. No one of them has a legal right to exercise the functions of Governor or Judge or State representative. Nor have they a right to elect a Governor or a member to the State Legislature or to the Congress of the United States. Nor will their political rights revive by a cessation of hostilities; for insurgents, once subdued, do not become innocent in virtue of that subjection.

It is true that many of these who, by imposition of law, are thus guilty, are, in intent and voluntary act, morally innocent. Through good and through bad report they have still clung to the old Union. But the law, in its rigid rule, knows no sympathetic pity—cannot be turned aside by sentiment. The Union has no truer friend than John Bull; but if Great Britain declared war against the United States, John Bull would be, in the eye of the law, our country's enemy.

As regards the insurgents generally, they are, however, as far as a position differing from that of their enemies, that as the disabilities in question are in the nature of a penalty resulting from crime, so will the crime of treason, these may under lawful authority (as by pardon) be removed; and when they are thus removed, the penalty ceases and the constitutional right revives.

Were this otherwise—were these disabilities permanent and irremediable—were there no constitutional mode by which the insurgents could recover their lost political rights—it is evident that Constitutions and laws cite Sate, having no citizens with legal capacity to exercise even the fundamental right of suffrage, would become nullities. But as it is—under a mere temporary suspension of rights which can be legally restored, and which common sense teaches we will but under some conditions of other, so restored—the case is quite different. I see no sufficient argument to proof that anything has occurred in case to null and void these Constitutions and laws. In my judgment, they but remain, for the present, inoperative as far as regards constitutional rights conferred by them; and as soon as the inhabitants of any insurgent State shall, with or without compulsion, recover, by act of law, their forfeited rights, the State Constitution and the laws made in pursuance thereof, as they stood previous to secession, will come again into full operation; designating, or hereafter, the mode in which the rights of suffrage and other constitutional rights shall be exercised. It must, however, be borne in mind, that, during the present interregnum, laws of the United States have been enacted and proclamations of the President of the United States have been issued, which are binding as part of the supreme law of the land, "anything in the Constitution or laws of the State to the contrary notwithstanding." (U. S. Constitution, Sec. 6.)

It would be an act of national folly to restore to the insurgents their political rights, except on such conditions as should afford a sufficient guaranty that the above laws and proclamations shall be maintained and obeyed. And it would be unavailing to attempt the establishment of permanent civil government in any insurgent State until it is cleared of armed rebels, so that the Federal Courts can hold their sessions, and the polls can be opened, without interruption from guerillas. Until then, Provisional Governments, military or congressionally appointed, are the only practicable form.

But the sooner such temporary expedients, unknown to the Constitution except as the offspring of necessity (separable from a state of civil war, can be dispensed with, the better for the cause of constitutional liberty. It is a rule of international law, that the laws and institutions of a conquered nation, except so far as these are inconsistent with the victor's system of government, shall remain unchanged until legally repealed or modified by the conquering Power. This rule is founded upon that consideration of humanity and decorum which forbids that there should be suddenly and arbitrarily wrenched, even from a nation that lies at the mercy of the conqueror, the laws and institutions which it has long been accustomed to. Still more binding is such a rule upon a nation, not a foreign nation but a domestic rebellion. The insurgents, once legally relieved with their political rights, are, in my opinion, entitled to their Constitutions and their laws, so far as these conform to the present Supreme Law of the land, and so far as these can be left to them with a due regard to the general welfare. And such changes as the public safety requires should be made legally and in strict accordance with the Constitution of the United States.

Let us beware how, under circumstances of momentous, we stray from the Constitutional path (every other is the path of danger. In the British subject the most powerful political sentiment is loyalty to his Queen; in the American citizen it is veneration for his Constitution. No appeal to that sentiment is ever made among us in vain. "The Constitution as it is!" No more potent watchword than that has been employed in a political contest. Except upon that ground, there is no firm or permanent place of reconciliation without exposing ourselves to assaults from the enemies of the Government, on the score of arbitrary and unconstitutional acts. And why adventure into the exposed fields of doubtful controversy, when we can fight, safely protected, behind the impregnable bulwarks of the Constitution?

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

ROBERT DALE OWEN.

Exciting Rumors—Reconvention Discussed.

PHILADELPHIA, Tuesday, Oct. 20.

Rumors are afloat that the military authorities there are making preparations for the transportation of bayonets, anticipating another raid in Pennsylvania. They need confirmation.

In the Continental Purse two mile heat race of the Belmont Park Course to-day, the jockey of the Sun Brave fell as he started, and hung by the bridle until this other horse was broken and he was kicked senseless. The boy is doing well. The Capt. Moore walked over the course and the Sun Brave was claimed.

An Important Discovery.

The Nineteenth Century will be handed down by history as one in which science has made greater progress than any other. Discovery upon discovery has followed almost year after year of late, so much so that we should not be surprised to hear that they would fully realize that a generation invented with greater discoveries than we in the place of the one in which they belonged. Among them all, medicine has not been forgotten. Many operations, before considered impossible, are now performed with success, and diseases considered incurable, now yield readily under the hand of the skillful physician. A disease, then which there is none more deleterious and insidious, carrying to premature graves hundreds annually, and which has heretofore baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians, is Catarrh. Few realize the fatal consequences from contracting it. Consumption, that terror of terrors, is but the effects of it in its advanced stages. As many may have it in its incipient stage and not be aware of it, we copy for their benefit the following paragraph from a treatise on it by Dr. Rowe, of No. 49 Concord-street, Brooklyn:

"Catarrh in its first stages is an inflammation of the lining of the nose. It produces a feeling of uneasiness, heat, and stiffness of the nostrils, which are often cleared on one or the other side, caused by the thickening of the membrane lining the nostrils, which in this, watery discharge compresses, constricting that part of the skin with which it comes in contact. If the disease is not checked [illegible] becomes thick and ropy, yellow color, sometimes tinged with blood, with an odor more [illegible] very obstinate. The breath of the patient becomes so revolting, offensive as to isolate him from society, and render him an object of disgust to himself. The disease frequently creeps down the throat, and has to be hawked up in order to obtain relief—the senses of smell and taste become greatly impaired, and sometimes entirely lost. Deafness sometimes results, in consequence of the frontal sinuses become affected. If the inflammation extends through the Eustachian tubes to the middle ear, the hearing becomes more or less impaired; if it extends down the throat it gives rise to dropsy, bronchitis and affections to the lungs and throat. The experience and investigations of the greatest savans in medical science have established the fact that in fully two-thirds of the cases of consumption it commenced by inflammation and ulceration of the air-passages. Remember that the best and only cure of Consumption is its prevention."

Snuffs have frequently been used, but have proved of no avail. Speaking of their use, Dr. Rowe says:

"Experience has proved to me that snuffs have no beneficial effects whatever on the disease—the only good they can bring is to clear the nostrils when obstructed, which soon becomes filled again. In many cases they have a decided injurious effect, by irritating the membrane, and thereby increasing the inflammation."

Very many imagine that it is a severe cold they are suffering from, and that it will soon go away, so insidious is the disease.

There are many that have it suffer and despair of being ever cured, yet knowing that it must ultimately bring them to the grave. It being the cause, in many instances, of deafness, besides the fearful inroads it makes on the general health, and the alarming extent to which it prevails, has brought it under the notice of Dr. Rowe, who has devoted much time and attention to it, and succeeded at last in discovering a system of treatment under which it yields readily, and is cured.

The case of Miss Day, daughter of Mr. Thomas S. Day, of No. 229 Pearl-street, Brooklyn, is an illustration of this. The young lady's health has been so impaired by it that all her friends supposed she was in consumption, and her life vanished by slow gradation. Everything had been tried in vain. Fortunately for her, she had not yet got to consumption, though she had several times raised blood, and seemed to be sinking fast. Under Dr. Rowe's care, however, she has been restored to excellent health, and the disease entirely removed. This should be a lesson to those afflicted not to let it progress so far, for every one may not be so fortunate when so far gone to be restored.—Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

From the army hospital—the bloody battle field—the mansion of the rich and humble abode of the poor—from the office and the sacred desk—from the mountain top, distant valleys and far-off islands of the ocean—from every nook and corner of the civilized world—is spoken in the evidence of the astonishing effects of DRAKE'S PLANTATION BITTERS. Thousands upon thousands of letters like the following may be seen at our office.

RESEVOIRT, Wis., Sept. 16, 1866.

* * * * I have been in the army hospitals fourteen months—speechless and nearly dead. At Alton, Ill., they gave me a bottle of Plantation Bitters. * * * Three bottles restored my speech and cured me. * * *

The following is from the Manager of the Union House School for the Children of Volunteers:

HAVERSTRAW MANSION, 37th-st., NEW-YORK, Aug. 2, 1866.

DR. DRAKE: Your wonderful Plantation Bitters have been given to some of our little children suffering from weakness and weak lungs with most happy effect. One little girl, in particular, with pains in the head, loss of appetite, and daily waking consumption, on whom all medical skill had been exhausted, has been entirely restored. We commenced with but a teaspoonful of Bitters a day. Her appetite increased; strength and health followed. * * *

Respectfully, MRS. C. M. DEVOE.

* * * I owe much to you. Sir! I really believe the Plantation Bitters have saved my life.

Rev. W. H. WAGGONER, Rahway, N. J.

* * * Then will send me two bottles more of the Plantation Bitters. My wife has been greatly benefited by their use. Thy friend,

ABA CURRIN, Philadelphia, Penn.

* * * I have been a great sufferer from Dyspepsia, and had to abandon preaching. * * * The Plantation Bitters have cured me.

Rev. J. S. CATHORN, Rochester, N. Y.

* * * Send us twenty-four dozen more of your Plantation Bitters, the popularity of which are daily increasing with the guests of our house.

SYKES, CHADWICK & CO.,

AGAIN NEW TESTIMONY.

READ.

BROOKLYN, July 23, 1866.

I have been deaf for over TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, and Dr. Von Eisenberg operated on both of my ears without the slightest pain—a thing that I could not believe could be done. I now hear well, and feel as I never felt for the last twenty years. The dexterity and skill with which the operation was performed evince the highest practical ability. I hear perfectly. It is now over a month since the operation, and I continue to feel as well as ever.

CATARRH CURED.

NEW-YORK, Aug. 27, 1866.

I have been suffering for the last three years from a severe Catarrh, with a continual fullness in my head, a tightness across my chest, a weight over my eyes, which were weak, watery and very painful. My nostrils were continually clogged with a pouring of fluid. I have had frequent coughing, hoarseness of my voice, generally attended with spitting, often with a fullness of my throat, together with a soreness and a dropping. Dr. Von Eisenberg has cured me of all these disagreeable sufferings. I now feel a new life. The treatment of Dr. Von Eisenberg is so skillful so it is successful; it is impossible to overrate the benefit I have received at his hands. I heartily recommend any one suffering like myself to place themselves under Dr. Von Eisenberg's care, with a certainty of being speedily cured. I give this with great pride and pleasure. I cannot forbear again saying that my voice, which was hoarse and thick when I applied to Dr. Von Eisenberg, is now clear and good; indeed, I feel abundantly satisfied.

JAMES LITTLE,
No. 245 7th-st., New-York.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 6.

I have been suffering for years past from a severe Catarrh, with a great heaviness over my eyes, with a severe depression, great tenderness, and pain in my head, great difficulty in breathing, and a continual accumulation in my nostrils which gave me restless nights for several years. I have consulted several physicians, who pronounced me to be consumptive. What I suffered for so long a time is indescribable. My system was entirely disorganized and greatly debilitated. I not only felt weak, but I had a cloud continually before my eyes, and my ears were so affected that I was threatened with a total loss of hearing. I must say, I think, I was guided by Providence to come to Dr. Von Eisenberg, who not only cured me of my Catarrh by removing an astonishing quantity of disagreeable matter from my head, but he restored me to perfect health, a blessing I have not enjoyed for many years. Now I enjoy a good night's rest, and pursue my business with comfort. I must acknowledge that Dr. Von Eisenberg's mild and scientific treatment for Catarrh deserves the highest commendation, as the principle which directs his system of curing Catarrh is such as to render success certain.

JAMES FURLONG, No. 250 2d-av.

No. 124 ALLEN-st., NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1865.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain.

JOHN TAYLOR.

NEW-YORK, July 20, 1866.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg restored from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with congealed blood, relieving her immediately and all without pain. He with greatest thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

CARROLL J. POST, No. 8 South-st.

SIGHT RESTORED. June 25, 1866.

My daughter brought me to Dr. Von Eisenberg almost completely blind in both eyes. I could not bear the pain, nor the light. I am completely cured by Dr. Von Eisenberg, and called now to express my gratitude to the Doctor for his skill and unremitting attention, by which I recovered one of the most precious senses to me after being deprived of it for four years. It is only due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to state that I have tried several specialists in vain. I shall be happy to bear personal testimony to Dr. Von Eisenberg's unrivaled success to any lady or gentleman who will call on me.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
GRAD.

NEW-YORK, March 26, 1866.

"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely plugged up accompanied by continual pressure of the throat, the phlegm sticking over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him who has little hope of a cure. I was now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his infallible and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I can in entirely restored to perfect health that I do most cordially recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg with a certainty of being cured."

No. 26 William-st., New-York, Oct. 15, 1863.

This Company will hold their ninth regular Monthly Auction on WEDNESDAY, the 28th day of October, 1863, at 12 o'clock noon, at the rooms now used as the Merchants' Exchange, Nos. 52 and 54 Exchange-place, corner of William-st., of the Scranton Coal they will offer, by SIMEON DRAPER, Auctioneer,

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND TONS OF FRESH MINED SCRANTON COAL,

embracing all the usual sizes, and deliverable at their depot, Elizabethport, N. J., after the 1st of November and prior to such month, at the option of the purchaser, on or about the 20th of each month during the year 1864.

The sale will be positive. Each lot put up will be sold to the highest bidder, no bids in any form otherwise, being made for account of or on behalf of the Company.

Thirty cents per ton to be paid down on each lot at the time and place of sale, and the balance, in like funds, on receiving the order for the coal, which must be called for within ten days thereafter, and the coal taken away within thirty days from the day of sale, unless navigation is obstructed, in which case the purchaser will have an additional thirty days for taking the delivery of their purchases, by making a further deposit of fifty cents per ton, within the ten days above specified. Interest, at 7 per cent, per annum, will in such case be charged on the balance, from the time stipulated for the coal to be taken away, and twenty-five cents per ton to cover the expense of stocking the coal—both to be paid on delivery of order.

The other conditions of sale will be substantially those hitherto accepted by all purchasers, for private contracts of coal deliverable at Elizabethport, so far as applicable. The coal will be delivered upon the cars at the mines on their arrival from the mines, when practicable—otherwise from the stock. These conditions will be modified to meet the wants of ocean steamers, if such arrival cannot be definitely fixed.

CONVENTION OF LOYAL LEAGUES.

Revolutionary Speeches &c.—An Immense Session.

UTICA, N. Y., Tuesday, Oct. 22.

Pursuant to call the Loyal League State Convention met in Mechanics Hall at noon to-day. Nearly 200 delegates are present, among them Gerrit Smith, E. P. Stanbery, of Buffalo; Dr. Rayne, Senators Bell and Sanford, N. W. Davis, and several other members of the last Legislature.

The Convention was called to order by E. W. Bemis, of Oneida, on whose motion James A. Bell was elected Chairman.

On motion of J. A. Williams, of Rensselaer, John Austin Stevens, Jr., of New-York, and George W. Taylor, of Yates, were chosen Secretaries.

On motion of N. W. Davis, a Committee of Eight on Organization was appointed.

On motion of Thomas B. Carroll a Committee of Eight to prepare the order of business was also appointed.

On motion it was resolved to hold a session in the afternoon with closed doors, excluding all but delegates, when the report of the Resolution Committee was received and adopted.

Adjourned till 3 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

UTICA, Tuesday, Oct. 22.

The Convention assembled at 3 o'clock, with closed doors.

The following report of the Committee on Permanent Organization was unanimously adopted:

For President—Hon. E. G. Spaulding.

Vice-Presidents—Benedict Schultz, of New-York; George J. Bennett, of Kings; J. A. Millard, of Rensselaer; Alanson Wenk, of Saratoga; George N. Kennedy, of Onondaga; J. W. Dwight, of Tompkins; John W. Stoffitz, of Monroe, and George W. Bull, of Erie.

Secretaries—R. M. Sherman, of Oneida; J. Austin Stevens, Jr., of New-York, and H. N. Beach, of Genesee.

The Business Committee reported the following resolutions:

Whereas, It is evident that although the opposition with which this reform have been overthrown in nearly every Free State, they mean to resort, by corrupt applicants and the most unwarrantable forces, to a continuance of old and comfort by this State to the Confederacy; therefore be it resolved,

First—That we hail with joy the unanimous surrender of Fort Pillow, as a fresh and signal manifestation of the extend our organizations and redouble our efforts to extend at the polls the work way emancipists are doing in the field.

Second—That it is the duty of our soldiers, both on their own account and in conjunction with other Union men, to use every means for the abolition of political caste and chattelism, and to multiply bright bayonet-flashings for political instruction, conviction and action.

Third—That we hail the election in Pennsylvania and Ohio as declaring the approval by the people of those States of the policy of the President in the conduct of the war, and of all the great measures to which he has resorted in its execution; and as declaring anew their determination, that the war shall be vigorously prosecuted until the integrity of our national territory and the supremacy of the American people shall be restored; and we hereby pledge our selves to the cordial and unswerving support of the Government until the rebellion is absolutely crushed, and our rights and liberties firmly established.

Fourth—The experience of the last few months has demonstrated that it is in vain our brave defenders in the field offer their lives for the preservation of our laws and liberties, if demagogues remaining at home, incited and sustained by political demagogues, may take the lives and plunder the property of citizens; hence it is equally as necessary to elect patriotic rulers and sustain good governments in the States, as it is for a brave army to march to hold the flag and maintain the integrity of the Union.

Fifth—The masses of the party calling itself Democratic are unquestionably loyal and patriotic. So were the masses of the people of the States led into rebellion true at first to the Union. But so long as leaders known to be disloyal are able to combine and control the action of unthinking followers, just so long must thinking men be active and vigilant in the defence of their liberties through the instrumentality of the elective franchise.

Sixth—It is the duty of our leaders and their individual members to devote all their available time to the promotion of the election of the Union candidates for office; and especially on the day of election to see that every man comes to the polls who is true to the Government, and that no man votes who is not legally entitled to the franchise.

Seventh—It is the duty, as it should be the pleasure, of all Loyal Leagues diligently to support every effort of a faithful Government to maintain and defend his integrity; hence every call that it may make for men and money for that purpose should be responded to with alacrity; and hence we regard the new call of the Government for patriotic volunteers, or if necessary for a further draft, as an indication of perseverance and determination worthy of all commendation, and deserving a most hearty response.

Mr. Henry Ezra was not satisfied with the general manner in which it was proposed to indorse the measures of the Administration. He desired something more specific, and moved that the following be inserted between the first and second resolutions:

Resolved, That we hail with joy and gratitude the Confiscation Act and the Emancipation Proclamation, not alone as efficient but transitory war measures, but as the only true and firm foundation of an enduring peace, and as the chief corner-stone of the Union regenerated in the spirit of Jefferson, Garrison.

The resolutions and address were then adopted.

The address discusses in what manner loyal citizens may best aid the Government in the prosecution of the war to the final overthrow of the rebellion; first, by talking and writing against the rebellion; second, with the liberal use of their money in the cheerful payment of taxes and investment in Government securities, third, by volunteering and encouraging enlistments by liberal bounties, and giving a generous support to the families of volunteers; fourth, by giving their votes to the Government, thus seeing that the civil, as well as the military power, is on its side.

The resolutions, especially that offered by Mr. Ezra, elicited discussion, and it was 6 o'clock before they were adopted.

The restriction, excluding all but delegates, was then removed, and the Convention took a recess until 7 P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session, Mr. Mitchell of Rensselaer presiding, was devoted to speeches.

Hon. N. W. Davis spoke briefly of the prospects of a Union success in the approaching contest, and of the imperative duty devolving upon all loyalists to work diligently to that end.

Mr. Wheeler, of Montgomery, followed in a warm defense of the course of Mr. Seward, his remarks being called out, as he stated, by an attack that had been made upon the Secretary during the morning secret session.

Mr. Conger, of Rensselaer, said he was not present when the course of Mr. Seward was criticised. But he reminded the gentleman that every delegate was naturally bound to consider and treat as strictly private whatever transpired during the sessions that were held with closed doors.

A delegate remarked that if Mr. Wheeler desired to add the Seward ticket, he ought to continue. Otherwise the propriety of changing his line of remarks would be apparent to him.

Mr. Wheeler said that he had endeavored twice before to secure the floor for the purpose of repelling the assault that had been made upon the Secretary of State, but had failed to attract the Chairman's attention. He would not, however, pursue the subject further than to say that the course of Mr. Seward, which had been thus unceremoniously and ignorantly assailed, observed admirable statesmanship, and met the approval of the first men in the Government; among others, the approval of Secretary Chase.

Messrs. Spinner, of New-York, and Roscoe Conkling, of Oneida, followed. The latter delivered an eloquent speech in defence of the Administration and in support of all its prominent measures.

Adjourned sine die.

Death of John D. Bates.

BOSTON, Tuesday, Oct. 21.

John D. Bates, Esq., head of the house of Messrs. Baring & Co., died in Europe about the 1st of October.

[illegible] Brigade, Second division, Second Corps, Army of the Potomac, killed in battle at Bristoe Station, Wednesday, Oct. 14, was of Irish-American parentage and born in the City of Brooklyn, Sept. 18, 1838. Having received a good commercial education, he was employed for, about eleven years ago, in the house of Warner, Gregg & Ramson, and subsequently in the firm of Hodgson & Hanvey, both in the wholesale commission business in this City. A few years, amounting to the business of the addition, he commenced in the same line of business on his own account, and quickly secured for himself an honorable position on the Stock of Exchange. When the first call for volunteers was made for the Army of the Potomac, he was among the first to enlist, and was appointed to a Lieutenancy in the Fourth Company (Capt. Ellsworth's) Seventh regiment, N. Y. S. N. G., but being yet junior to the present war, he cheerfully responded to what he regarded as the imperative call of necessity, and waiving all other considerations, he went with his regiment as a private in the ranks, but soon to Washington. On his return, after its first month's service, and anticipating any further participation of the regiment in the struggle, and enthusiastically eager to do his share of patriotic duty to the Republic—of whose history he had been a diligent student, and in whose position among the nations he felt a robust pride—he joined as a First Lieutenant, the Fortieth New-York Volunteer (Ancient) regiment, then commanded by his brother-in-law, Col. J. J. Bleecker.

After the Army of the Potomac had been transferred to the Peninsula, last year, Lieut. Mallon was detached from his regiment and appointed to the staff of the late Gen. Kearny, and for some time acted in the capacity of Assistant Adjutant-General on the aide-de-camp General's Staff. Of this appointment—which was especially designed as a recognition of his intelligence and dexterity—Lieut. Mallon was very justly proud, coming as it did from so distinguished an officer of his own race as Maj.-Gen. Philip Kearny. Soon after the death of Kearny, Lieut. Mallon was transferred by Gen. Morris from the Regiment to the Tammany (Irish-American) New-York Volunteer regiment, and promoted to the rank of Major for gallantry and efficiency.

On the reorganization of the Army of the Potomac, under Gen. Pleasonton, Maj. Mallon was detached from his regiment and assigned to the position of Acting Assistant Provost-Marshal of Hooker's Grand division. He was subsequently detailed for the performance of the same duty, in connection with the Second corps, then under Gen. Gibbon.

On the death of the gallant Colonel of the Forty-second, and the direct and earnest recommendations of Gen. Hancock, (then in command of the Army of the Potomac) as also of his immediate corps, division and brigade commanders, Maj. Mallon was raised to the Colonelcy of the regiment, by Gov. Seymour, against decidedly strong political pressure in favor of another officer. Col. Mallon's commission, moreover, was dated St. Patrick's Day, 1863, a trivial circumstance in itself, but very agreeable to his feelings. He commanded his regiment in the battle of Gettysburgh in July, and during that terrible conflict was respected under the immediate personal leadership of Maj.-Gen. Mead, who had swung round from corps to corps, according to the necessities of each, the veteran fighting brigade, which included Col. Mallon's regiment. In a subsequent conversing with the present writer about the glorious victory of July, Col. Mallon was most enthusiastic in his eulogy of the coolness, skill and valor of Gen. Meade, to whom he referred as an illustration of his high ideal of a most accomplished soldier.

On the retreat of Lee's army to the south of the Potomac, Col. Mallon was detached, with orders to proceed to New-York and secure a reinforcement of conscripts for his war-worn regiment. He was in this vicinity, in obedience to his instructions, through the months of August and September. Some three weeks ago he came over to Brooklyn for the last time bade farewell to his friends, to rejoin his command in Dixie, as he himself expressed it, "for the next fight." It was his last fight. His death was caused by a gunshot wound in the stomach, which unfortunately proved fatal in half an hour. He closed his brief career gloriously, as became so noble a citizen-soldier. He had often spoken to the writer, of the cavalcade death of his former chief, the lamented Kearny. He felt the full force of a favorite quotation, which was—

"Whether on the scaffold high,
Or in the battle's van,
The noblest place for man to die,
Is where he dies for man."

As Kearny fell, so "in the battle's van," and in the same glorious cause, fell the youthful and chivalrous Mallon. A braver soldier, a truer patriot, a more perfect gentleman never drew the breath of life. He leaves an aged mother and a young wife, with two small children, to bear the affliction of a most heart-rending bereavement.

Gen. Mallon was about five feet seven inches high, and of remarkably sinewy frame. His manly features were most expressive of the rare qualities of mind and soul, to which were traceable the causes which led to his rapid promotion from the position of a private soldier, to the leadership of one of the most efficient brigades in the service of the Republic.

In religion, Gen. Mallon, like all his family, was a Catholic; in political convention he was a Conservative Republican; but he never had anything to do with, and had no taste for, practical politics.

His remains reached the residence of the family in Little Water-street, Brooklyn, on Monday, under the care of his brother, Lieut. Thomas Mallon, who was himself very seriously wounded in the battle of Gettysburgh. His funeral, which will take place early to-day, (Wednesday), will be strictly private, in obedience to the frequently expressed wishes of the fallen hero. M. H.

The Seventeenth New-York Volunteers.

The Seventeenth New-York Volunteers Veteran regiment leaves on the 21st inst. for the field. This is the only regiment of the two years' men raised in 1861, that returns with its numerical designation. Having raised more men in the reorganization than any other regiment, it was filled in the consolidation. This regiment was raised in the Spring of 1861 by Col. H. S. Lansing, at present commanding New-York troops in process of organization. It bore a conspicuous part in the Peninsular Campaign, and returned with its flags well riddled, but preserved with honor. This veteran regiment is well officered by veterans. Col. Wm. T. C. Grower went out in 1861 as Captain of Company "D," in the original Seventeenth, and returned as Major. At the battle of Groveton, 30th August, 1862, while in command of the regiment, he was wounded in the leg, which confined him six months to his bed, and from which he is still suffering. Lieut.-Col. Edward Jardin, formerly Major of the Ninth, ("Hawkins' Zouaves,") was wounded severely during the recent action, and still lies upon his back, but is recovering. Major J. O. Martin went out in the original Seventeenth as First Lieut. of Company B, and returned a Captain. He was shot through the cheek at Groveton, Aug. 30, 1862, in the same engagement in which Col. Grower received his wound. The Adjutant, A. F. Hollins, went out in the original Seventeenth as a Sergeant; returned a First Lieutenant. The Quartermaster, A. M. Wheeler, went out in the original Seventeenth as Second Lieutenant of Company K, and returned a Captain. At the battle of Fredericksburgh he had a piece of his skull carried away by a minié ballet, now covered only by a thin membrane. His life was saved by the skill of the then and present Surgeon of the regiment, Dr. James C. Swann, who again returns with it.

In the line are the following officers of the original Seventeenth, who returned with the rank they now bear: Capt. Hiram Wilde, Capt. Charles Hilbert, Lieut. Cornelius Green, Lieut. James Fox, Lieut. Charles H. Peake.

On the 16th inst. Col. H. S. Lansing presented the regiment with a stand of colors, in the name of the old regiment. Brig.-Gen. Casey was present, and the occasion was one of great interest. It was the intention of Col. Grower to make a parade before leaving, but his orders would not admit of it. We expect to hear a good account of the regiment, as its rank and file are more than two-thirds veteran soldiers, and a dear body of men were never got together.

Court of General Sessions.

Before Recorder Hackett.

At the opening of the Court, Monday, the roll of Grand Jurors was called, and the following gentlemen impanneled and sworn:

STEPHEN HYATT, Foreman.

Martin L. Bryant,	Peter Sabin,	Elah Brooks,
John O. Baxter,	John A. Gurney,	Benedict Lewis, Jr.
John H. Olcott,	J. C. C. Reynolds,	Geo. E. Lawrence,
Hy. J. Marshall,	J. J. Marshall, Jr.,	Geo. W. Ray,
David Terry,	Ryan T. Walker,	Saml. S. Constant,
Geo. H. Franklin,	Chas. E. Fearing,	Andrew Leaman,
Isaac Odell,	Saml. T. Williams,	Lewis Boulder.

Recorder Hackett in charging the Grand Jury said, that under ordinary circumstances it was only necessary to call their attention to certain offences which the law made it his duty to present to their consideration, and there were no circumstances existing at present which called for a departure from the general rule. The scenes of excitement through which the City had passed were now happily ended, and the City was as quiet at present as it ever had been during his recollection. To be sure there was an abundance of crime constantly committed in our midst as there always must be in a large community like this; and yet, we were no worse off in this respect than other large cities of the world. In a recent charge of Mr. Justice Bradshaw to the Grand Jury at the opening of the Liverpool Assizes, it was stated that "the calendar exhibited a more fearful state of crime, particularly with regard to murder and manslaughter, than has ever before been noticed. There were in all 107 prisoners, and of these 26 were charged with homicide, while eleven were committals for murder."

The Recorder cautioned the Jury to exercise proper care in the examination of cases coming before them; they were not to serve as a mere rubber through which prisoners before committing magistrates were to be transferred to this Court in the form of indictments, but they should examine each case for themselves. While confronting these cases in a careless feeling of indifference, he did not by any means wish to be understood as endorsing the statements frequently made, that it was the easiest thing in the world to indict a person indicted. Men had not been in this Court, within his recollection, but two cases where the Grand Jury had found indictments which were not warranted by the evidence. The Recorder concluded his charge by enumerating the various offences to which the statute required that he should call their attention, and said that, as a Grand Jury had been sitting in the Oyer and Terminer for the last two weeks, their duties would be of short duration, and the Court would probably adjourn for the term at the end of the week.

Margaret Dempsey, a woman of the town, was then tried for stealing $40 from Jesse Mayers, at a drinking saloon in Gold-street, and convicted. The Recorder sentenced her to two years in the State Prison.

The Russian Excursion to Niagara Falls.

The officers of the Russian fleet will start on their excursion to Niagara Falls to-morrow morning. The excursion has been gotten up under the joint auspices of the Hudson River Steamboat Company and the New-York Central and Erie Railroad Companies. All the officers of the fleet, numbering 300 and over, will join in the excursion, and they will be accompanied only by the Committee representing the Railroads and a few invited guests. The following is the form of the invitations which have been issued, and which are confined exclusively to officials or ex-officials of the City or State:

NEW-YORK, Oct. 18, 1862.

SIR: The honor of your company is requested on an excursion to Niagara Falls, in company with the Admiral and officers of the Russian fleet.

The Excursion will leave foot of Jay-street on Thursday morning, Oct. 23, at 6 o'clock, by steamer for Albany, on Friday, at 8 A. M., by New-York Central Railroad, for Niagara.

On Monday, a train will leave Buffalo, (at an hour of which notice will be given) for Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Albany, and the Erie Railway, to New-York.

We have the honor to inclose tickets for these several conveyances. Should you be unable to go, we will thank you to return them to Mr. Sherman, No. 11 Nassau-street. An answer will oblige. We have the honor to be, your obedient servants,

DANIEL DREW,
For Hudson River Steamboat Company.
WATTS SHERMAN,
For New-York Central Railroad Company.
J. C. BANCROFT DAVIS,
For Erie Railway Company.

We understand that it was the special request of the Russian Admiral, on accepting the invitation, that the trip should be as private as possible, and that there should be no speech-making, banqueting, or public demonstrations of any kind during the excursion. Considerable annoyance has been caused by the Russian Admiral for wishing to avoid as far as possible all publicity in the affair was rather curious, and hardly to have been expected from a representative of Imperial Russia, but he doubtless knows his own business best. It is to be hoped that the wishes of the gentleman in question, and that the American Press will refrain from mentioning any of the incidents of the excursion, lest every sight be carried in the breast of Johnny Crapaud. There will be notes enough in the rear of Niagara without the accompaniment of banquetting speeches. "Speech," says Carlyle, "is human silence is divine." Let no man open his mouth while a Russian guest of the great Republic, if he does, let no reporter take note of what he sayeth.

Board of Supervisors.

A PROPOSED SPECIAL BOUNTY OF $300 FOR VOLUNTEERS.

The Board of Supervisors met yesterday, when the following preamble and ordinance were offered by Mr. Boyce and referred to the Special Committee appointed to provide substitutes for drafted men:

Whereas, The City and County of New-York, during the existing rebellion, has proved itself eminently loyal and thoroughly devoted to the cause of the Union, in furnishing men for the army fighting for its preservation, and also in the expenditure of millions of money both from the Corporate Treasury and from private sources; the men and money so contributed being in amounts amounting to a figure far beyond the proportion which, by numbers or wealth, could have been justly demanded of her; and

Whereas, The experience of the New-York County Substitute and Relief Fund has proved that proper inducements could have raised a force of volunteers in this City and county, which would have rendered a draft unnecessary, (in a much less space of time, and with one-fourth the expenditure of money expended in the actual enforcement of the draft,) while an hour of the time and the management of business capacity upon the enforcement of this measure in this City and County would have been avoided; and

Whereas, It is now definitely ascertained, that of the whole force for which the draft was made in this City and county, not one-fourth of the whole number will have been men obtained or by constitutes, including those who enter the service in person, those who furnish substitutes, and those who pay the commutation money, who will have cost no expense of money; and the expenditure of the General Government in maintaining a large armed force and the unpopularity of this county in consequence of the riot, equal to about one thousand dollars per man; while, after all, of the men actually obtained the action of this Board of Supervisors, in raising the County Substitute and Relief Fund, will have secured about one-half; and

Whereas, It is known that the time of many regiments of three years' men now in the army will expire within the present year, which fact, with the failure to realize anything like the number of men from the draft just concluding, renders another draft imminent, unless some measures are taken to raise the men who are and may be required of this City and county by volunteering; and

Whereas, It is believed that a bounty of not more than three hundred dollars per man will raise as large a force as is or may be required of us, while such a measure would give satisfaction to our citizens, by securing that no one should be required to leave his home involuntarily, and at the same time prove of a great benefit to the Government, by giving them a large force of willing volunteers, instead of a small force of unwilling men; and

Whereas, The President has actually issued his proclamation calling for 300,000 more men, who will be drafted unless they are raised by the 5th day of January, 1863, or sooner by volunteering; and

Whereas, It is certain that the quota of this county, whatever it may be, can be raised by volunteering under the incentive of proper bounties, and with proper management in the disposition of such bounties; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in order to provide against the necessity of the enforcement of any future draft in the City and County of New-York, that the ordinance hereto annexed be and it is hereby offered:

AN ORDINANCE

TO PROVIDE FOR THE PROCUREMENT OF VOLUNTEERS, PROVIDED THE SAME CAN BE COUNTED ON THE QUOTA OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW-YORK IN ANY FUTURE CALL OR DRAFT FOR TROOPS.

The Board of Supervisors of the City and County of New-York do ordain as follows:

Sec. 1. For the purpose of preventing the withdrawal from this City at any future time of any considerable number of active able-bodied citizens whose presence and services are required for the maintenance of the peace of public order and the security of its inhabitants, who may be drafted for the purpose of aiding the Government to secure men for the army, the Comptroller is hereby authorized and directed to pay, at hereinafter provided, such sum or sums of money as may be necessary to procure acceptable volunteers, not exceeding three hundred dollars for any one volunteer who may be credited on the quota of this City and County in any future draft.

Sec. 2. The money authorized by the preceding section to be paid for volunteers shall be paid to such volunteers respectively, or their duly authorized agents, at the office of the County Auditor, or such other place or places as said Comptroller may designate, immediately upon their furnishing him with satisfactory evidence of their acceptance and actual mustering into the service aforesaid.

Sec. 3. The Mayor, Comptroller, and the following named members of this Board—that is to say, Elijah F. Purdy, Orson Blunt, William M. Tweed and William K. Stewart—are hereby designated and appointed a Committee to raise the volunteers under this ordinance. And such Committee shall first ascertain whether the Government will allow such volunteers on the quota of the City and County of New-York in any future draft.

Sec. 4. In order that the Comptroller may be enabled to make the payments herein-before authorized, and the expenses incidentally incurred in the prosecution of this ordinance, he is hereby authorized to borrow from time to time, on the faith and credit of the County of New-York, the sum of two million dollars, ($2,000,000) which is hereby appropriated therefor.

Sec. 5. The Comptroller is hereby further authorized to issue to the extent of this appropriation, such sums of money as may remain after the expenses are fully paid, and all expenses paid of the contract entered under the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the procurement of Substitutes for certain Citizens of the City and County of New-York, and for other purposes," adopted by the Board of Supervisors, and approved by the Mayor, August 18, 1862.

Sec. 6. For the money so borrowed, the Comptroller shall execute and deliver to the persons lending the same, bonds of the County of New-York, which shall be signed by the Comptroller, countersigned by the Mayor, and sealed with the common seal of the Board, attested by the Clerk, which shall bear interest at such rate as may be agreed upon, not exceeding six per cent. per annum, and the principal thereof shall be redeemable on or before the 1st day of September, 1882.

Sec. 7. For the payment and redemption of said bonds and the interest thereon according to their tenor, the faith of the County of New-York and of the Board of Supervisors of said County is hereby solemnly pledged.

Which was referred to the Special Committee on Substitutes and Relief.

The Eighth Senatorial District.

MR. HAWLEY D. CLAFF'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

MASSACHUSETTS, Oct. 20, 1862.

GENTLEMEN: I am in receipt of your communication announcing to me that I have been nominated as the Union candidate for the responsible and honorable office of Senator for the Eighth Senatorial District.

I am not now and never have been a politician, though my affinities have been with the Democratic party. I have never thought or cared much; but I have always believed that it was the duty of every citizen to respond to the wishes of his fellow-citizens, if they desired him to serve them in any honorable capacity; and certainly in times like the present, when our country, and not party, requires private sacrifices for public good, I do not feel that I have a right to refuse to accept your nomination. I also believe that the violence of some of the opinions before expressed by fully known to be entertained by the Court, and I perceive understood before the Court, and I perceive no reason that, if elected, I shall consider it a sacred duty to the old Democratic party to do any thing in my power to aid the Administration in its great work of saving the Union. Here party questions I consider of secondary and great object. Men cannot be expected to be rigidly armed rebels, and think it time enough to support when they have laid down their arms and called upon to restored to the Union that, by their unholy acts, they attempted to destroy. With sincere thanks for the honor you have conferred upon me, I remain, very truly yours,

HAWLEY D. CLAFF.

James W. White, Superior Court.
Hon. Henry Hogan, Common Pleas.
Hon. Florence McCarthy, Marine Court.

Naval Movements.

THE U. S. STEAMER IDAHO—SPEED IN WHEELS OF WAR.

The United States steamer Idaho is being constructed by Mr. Henry Steers, at his yard in Greenpoint. Her chief characteristic is speed. Her general dimensions are as follows: Length, 220 feet; width, 42 feet, and depth of hold, 26 feet. Her capacity is about 3,000 tons burden. The model of the Idaho is narrow, running out, both forward and aft, very sharp, and not unlike that of the famous Niagara, built by the lamented Gustave Sewane. In a vessel designed to carry freight, as a merchantman, the model is very full and wide, while the reverse is the case with the Idaho. The model is so fashionably rounded that a straight-edge could not rest on any part of the external surface of the vessel. She is strongly put together as a bridge, and a trusse-frame pie through the upper deck down to the keelson, and extend the whole length of the vessel. When afloat her sides will present a surface twelve feet above the water-line, giving her a rather long and raised appearance. She will be very heavy, and will certainly be an excellent seaboat. The faster she is propelled the higher will her bows be forced up from the water. The cabin and wardroom will be fitted up according to the latest style. They will be more than usually roomy for a vessel of her class, owing, in a great measure, to the comparatively small space the engines occupy. The cabin is 30 feet long, 18 feet wide, and 6½ feet high. The wardroom is 25 feet long, very spacious and nicely fitted up. The ventilation of the vessel will be accomplished according to the best method—by means of two blowers, driven by engines, with air-tubes communicating with the water rooms and other parts of the vessel. The engines are placed one forward and the other aft of the vessel. The gun-deck is 6½ inches thick of yellow pine. The frames of the decks are white and live oak. There are three decks 6½ feet between them—the gun deck, the berth deck and the orlop deck. The battery is on the gun-deck; the berth deck is occupied by the officers, crew and marines are ranged on each side of the whole length of the deck, and the orlop deck is allowed the full complement of stores, which will be 300 tons. Under canvas alone, she must take the palm over any other vessel of her class that floats on the ocean. She will carry 20,000 feet of canvas, and this will make her go in a good breeze 18 knots an hour. She will be bark rigged. The mainmast and foremast are 90 feet high, and the mizzenmast 80 feet high; the topmast and gallantmast are all in one. The fore and main yards are 80 feet. There will be no yards on the mizzenmast, being bark rigged. She will have the improved wire rigging. Her armament will be very heavy, consisting of 14 heavy rifled guns, the pivots being so constructed that a regular broadside bears the whole length of the vessel; their calibre is nine inches, Parrott's design. She will also carry one 200-pounder gun forward and one aft. The engines for this splendid vessel are being constructed at the Morgan Iron Works in this City, and will be completed in about 2½ months. They are of peculiar construction, direct-acting and have a greater speed of piston than was ever thought could be obtained—the piston traveling 11,000 feet a minute. An important objection among naval people for the construction of vessels in which almost everything is sacrificed for speed, is the fact that their engines being so powerful and large take up an immense amount of room in the ship. In the Idaho this objection is removed, as the engines take up less room than is usual in vessels of her class, and weigh only 450 tons. On the other hand, Government has ordered engines for the Wachusett, and another vessel whose chief characteristic will be speed, whose engines will weigh 1,200 tons. The cylinders of the Idaho will be 100 inches in diameter, the piston 8 inches in diameter, and eight feet stroke of piston. The dimensions of the cylinders of the iron-clad Puritan, will be 146 inches in diameter, and are indicative of the expected speed of that vessel. The Idaho it will be seen, surpasses that amount. Another new feature is the situation of the propellers—one on each side of the stern-post. Each propeller will be worked by a small and a large screw, for the reason that there is a light draft of water, and it is necessary to have more surface than could well develop the power.

The engines will give about 3,500-horse power, but they are capable of developing 7,000-horse power—sufficient almost to drive the vessel out of water. The boilers are arranged to burn five tons of coal an hour. She can carry 800 tons of coal. If it is expedient she can steam eight knots an hour and use 18 tons of coal per day. She has two blowing engines, and if it is necessary they can carry 160 pounds of steam, as the boilers are so arranged that it can be easily accomplished. Her model is very light—14 feet. Next to the power of the engines nothing affects the speed of a ship more than her draft of water. Of course, a vessel that draws only five feet of water can be driven faster than a vessel which draws ten. As an illustration of the draft of water on speed in some of the fastest vessels that come into New-York, we append the following table:

Name.	Draft of water.	Speed.
Adriatic	22 to 22 feet.	Average 13 knots.
Persia	20 to 21 feet.	13 to 14 knots.
Scotia	20 to 22 feet.	13 to 14 knots.
Fleet Alabama	Light draft.	13 to 16 knots.
Niagara	Light draft.	15 to 16 knots.
Great Eastern	26 feet.	18 knots.

It is to be regretted that we cannot include in the above table any vessels in the United States Navy. Some of them have made, from time to time, on extraordinary occasions, 13 to 16 knots. We doubt whether any have ever passed that, although the Niagara is reported to have sailed 15 knots for five consecutive hours, but we doubt whether she ever made more than 14 for any length of time. If the Idaho meets the expectations of her constructors, she will go 16 knots an hour under steam—equal to 17½ miles. At present she is on the stocks, half planked, with the decks in, and men are constantly at work upon her. She will be launched about New Year's.

COMPLETION OF THE OCEAN IRON-CLAD DICTATOR.

Dictator, 6, Ocean Iron-clad.—This vessel is now finished, so far as the work to be done on the stocks is concerned, and preparations are being made to get the river in a condition to launch her. Mud dredges have been at work for several days in clearing that portion of the stream opposite Thirteenth-street. In a few days everything will be ready to float off the magnificent ship; and if there is plenty of water on the 24 of November she will be consigned to the briny element. Nothing like the Dictator has ever been built in this country or in Europe. The magnitude of the armor on her turrets and her sides surpasses the most formidable protection ever conceived for ships before. It is said that the Secretary of the Navy will be present himself at the launch.

TRIAL TRIP OF THE UNITED STATES STEAMER BERMUDA.

Bermuda, 2, United States steamer, has just returned from a trial-trip to Philadelphia. Soon after the left Port Royal, the United States steamer Bienville, regarded as one of the fastest vessels in the navy, came out, bound for New-York. It soon became evident that the Bienville was disposed to give the Bermuda a trial of speed. For some time both vessels kept abreast; but, slowly and surely the Bermuda crept ahead, and in a little while the Bienville was far astern, and soon was lost to view. The trip was very successful and satisfactory to all concerned.

NEW VESSELS ADDED TO THE NAVY.

The following vessels have been added to the Navy within a few weeks:

Steamtugs Geranium, Narcissus, Sweet Brier and Camellia. The names of the following vessels are to be changed as subjoined:

Albert DeGroot to be Snow Drop.
Willet J. Rea to be Iris.
Hippodamo to be Hydrangia.

These craft and several others have been purchased for the purpose of acting as lookouts in the South Atlantic Sect, a whole squadron of them having been sent away within a few weeks. It would not be proper to give descriptions or particulars about them.

COMPLETION OF THE QUINTARD BATTERY CHOCTAW.

In compliance with orders from the Navy Department, every effort is being made to finish this vessel as soon as possible. She would have been ready for sea last week, but orders were received to have a part of her turret enlarged, to admit of a 15-inch gun being put out through it. The work is now being done, and will be completed in a few days. It is expected that on the 4th or 5th of November she will be reported to the Navy Department as ready to make her trial trip.

THE NEW IRON-CLAD MONONGO.

Messrs. Snook & Co. have obtained from the Government the contract for building the new iron-clad steamer, to be launched from Snook's yard, foot of Hudson-street, Hoboken, and now nearly ready for sea. They were ordered a few months since for the Italian Government by the Royal Italian Marine Department. It is understood the Re de Italie will have steam on her engines some time this week. Both vessels are bark-rigged, are 200 feet in length, 46 beam, 23 feet depth of hold, and register about 3,000 tons. They are to be clad with 4½-inch iron plates, and will in no wise be inferior to the latest built iron-clads of their class.

COLLISION ON THE NORTH RIVER.

The Steamer Commonwealth Run Into by an English Propeller.

Last evening, at 5 o'clock, as the steamer Commonwealth, Capt. Williams, one of the Boston line of packets, was leaving her pier at the foot of Cortlandt-street, she came in collision with the English propeller Bolidon, bound for Jamaica, and was considerably damaged. The Commonwealth, at the time of the accident, had just rounded her pier, and was stopped to permit the Flora, a Staten Island ferry-boat, to pass, which was not done without the vessels striking each other. No damage, however, resulted from the first collision. Almost immediately after the Flora got clear of the Commonwealth, which at the time was lying still, the Bolidon suddenly made her appearance, and apparently without any regard for consequences, struck the Commonwealth on her starboard wheelhouse, carrying away the guard and the "A" frame under the shaft. The damage to the vessel will probably not exceed $1,000. There was considerable excitement on board, but none of the passengers were injured. The English propeller, after the accident, backed off, and went on her way, without stopping to inquire the extent of the injury she had done. The Commonwealth will probably be detained four or five days for repairs. The Connecticut took her passengers and freight and will temporarily take her place on the line.

Colors Presented to the Fifth Regiment.

About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the colors ordered by the City, for the Fifth regiment N. Y. S. N. G., were presented by President Walsh, of the Board of Aldermen, who was acting as Mayor, in the absence of Mayor Opdyke. The regiment, in heavy marching order, entered the Park by the east gate, and formed in a line, stretching across the entire length of the grand avenue in front of the City Hall. Acting Mayor Walsh then appeared in front of the Hall, accompanied by a number of the members of the Common Council, preceded by Mr. Spence W. Rosan, Keeper of the City Hall, bearing the new colors. The colors were taken to the front, and there waved while the municipal deputation reviewed the regiment, the band meanwhile playing "Hail to the Chief." After this, President Walsh made the presentation in a few remarks, taking occasion as well to compliment the regiment for their promptness in responding to the calls of duty.

Col. Benson replied, accepting the present with thanks. He alluded to the fact of the Fifth being one of the oldest regiments in the City, and said it was always ready to uphold the Constitution of the country, and to preserve the order the City.

The regiment then marched in review before the Acting Mayor and his associates, and proceeded on their way up town.

The colors are of white and blue silk. One standard bears the City, and the other the State coat of arms. They cost $300.

THE MUNICIPAL BANQUET.—The banquet at the Astor House to the Russian Admiral and his officers was the most successful and creditable affair of the kind in this City for many years. For this the credit belongs to the Committee—Aldermen Frement, Farley, Hall and Comptroller Kennedy, McCosker, Murray, Alderman Farley took the laboring oar, and to his good taste and discretion is largely due the success and the satisfactory manner in which everything passed off. The amount of labor and perplexity endured was enough to have made even a more roland Alderman than Mr. Farley this, but good nature kept him "fat and hearty," and perseverance saw him through. This banquet was the initiative of a new order of things in the way of Municipal festivities. The Committee were virtually aided by Messrs. William Hitchman, as Clerk, and Terry B. Smith, Sergeant-at-Arms.
